number or to parties, lawyers or ent them in negotia-
upon questions of anything else is entirely and cannot be reasonably or legally overruled.

the vast number of unauthorized strikes declared in violation of existing contracts solemnly entered into where collective bargaining is in full force, leads to the conclusion that it is useless to bargain with many of the labor organizations as at present constituted.

On the one side there is responsibility and liability for financial damages; on the other there is neither. Hence it is but natural that many employers are beginning to ask of what use is it to bargain with people who do not hold to their bargain or who do not keep their word.

In every contract the obligation on both parties should be equally binding, but in case of the labor organizations, such as the soft coal miners, there is no responsibility, no liability for breach of contract. The miners are under contract solemnly made by their leaders to run till April next or to the end of the war if it comes sooner.

But for some months, they have been planning to violate that contract which they are free to do without any liability for financial damages. At the present time there are over 300 labor strikes in progress in this country in open violation of contract and in opposition to the express will of the higher union officials.

Thus employers are kept in a state of uncertainty by the unreliability of labor. Strikes are so frequent and declared on such flimsy pretexts that production is greatly lessened and both employer and employee suffer accordingly. The question is asked as to how this state of affairs will be remedied and the answer is, that there is just one way and only one, which is to make the unions legally responsible for observance of their agreements and for violations of the law.

For some years past, professional agitators such as Eftor, Haywood and others have been going up and down this land railing against the men who are engaged in manufacturing business and stirring up trouble among the laboring classes wherever possible. They simply urge labor strikes with or without cause, mainly for revolutionary purposes, and the government has tolerated such action. These men on the other hand, have boasted that in so doing, they were wholly within their rights under our constitution which guarantees freedom of speech if properly exercised.

The conviction has now become very general that a great mistake was made in allowing any set of men to go about preaching and actually organizing revolution. That must be stopped. The activity of the Reds must be suppressed by driving the agitators from the country or else by shutting them up where they belong. Such a policy would eliminate the Reds, the syndi-calists and the Bolsheviks.

But another change is necessary to prevent these continuous and unauthorized strikes by irresponsible bodies of workers, chiefly, it is believed, under the influence of radicals who have found their way into the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.
The unions must be placed upon a business basis so that they may be properly identified from the mass, and made responsible in a legal sense for whatever agreements they enter into with their employers.

There would then be no objection to collective bargaining for the reason that the agreements would be made between two responsible parties. It is highly probable that the reforms of the future will include some arrangement of this kind in order to overcome many present abuses, to stabilize industry and to give labor unions a proper sense of responsibility for their acts, whether as parties to an agreement or the authors of a great labor strike.

EUROPE'S APPEAL FOR AID

From Paris comes a very strong appeal made by Pierpont B.
Noyes, a New York business man, and member of the Inter-Allied Rhine-Ruhr commission for an early ratification of the peace treaty, showing that without the United States in the League of Nations to secure permanent peace, the changes in the boundaries between the different nations as laid down in the treaty, will result in many conflicts among the smaller nations that will keep Europe in a state of turmoil for years and greatly retard the return of normal conditions.

He paints a very gloomy picture of the conditions prevailing in some of the war-ridden and poverty-stricken countries, stating that without the help of this country there will be starvation and utter collapse.
The enterprise and credit of individuals must be backed by the credit of the United States government in a gigantic plan for economic relief. In order to keep the wheels of industry turning, he says Europe will need to import during the next year at least four billion dollars' worth of raw material and semi-manufactured products; and for full production, she will need $1,500,000,000 worth of American capital. She also needs $2,000,000, 000 worth of American foodstuffs.

Evidently Mr. Noyes has studied the situation on the continent and has obtained an accurate view as to the needs of the various countries.
The first step he urges is ratification of the treaty and then an effort to promote production throughout this country, so that there may be enough to spare for the nations of Europe now helpless and hopeless without outside assistance.

In this appeal alone, there is sufficient encouragement to the industrial classes of this country to drop their petty warfare with employers and enter upon a year of activity in all industries that would equal that of the war period when the rule of "work or fight" was enforced with great success, compelling everybody to be busy at some useful occupation.

The demand of Europe for American products is greater this year than ever before, but unfortunately, as a result of labor troubles, the manufacturers are not at present in a position to meet these demands as they otherwise would. Of course, whatever can be done in this direction, will benefit alike employer and employed, provided, however, that in trying to help Europe, we shall neither raise the prices at home nor shorten the supply below what is needed.

EUROPE WANTS COAL

The Commerce Monthly for November, issued by the National Bank of Commerce of New York, shows that the countries of Europe will largely depend upon the United States for a supply of coal during the next year or two. It is pointed out that although this country produces more than half the world's coal, England, in the past, has been the chief exporter.
As a result of the war, however,
England will be compelled to yield the leadership to the United States.
On this point, the Commerce Monthly says:

"More than half of the total coal resources of the world are in the United States. During the past ten years, production of coal in the United States has developed remarkably, showing in 1918 an increase of 32 per cent. over the average production during the five years 1909 to 1913. The most rapid increases in production have taken place in Illinois and West Virginia, the output of the former of these states for 1918 being 21,- 000,000 tons and of the latter 21,- 000,000 tons over the 1909 to 1913 average. Pennsylvania increased her bituminous output 22,000,000 tons as compared with her average of 1909 to 1913 and anthracite production for 1918 was 11,000,000 tons over the average for the same period.

"While American coal production in 1918 broke all records, output for the current year will be far below that level. If the present rate of output is maintained, anthracite production will be about 75,000,000 tons and bituminous production 432,000,000 tons, a total 507,000,000 tons, the lowest production since 1915. It is believed that anthracite production is adequate, but at the present time it is not possible to determine whether or not the country faces an actual shortage of bituminous coal during the coming winter."

The more important problem,
this writer thinks, is not the domestic, but the international coal situation. The shortage in Europe out of the war, the shortage of labor, reducing the hours of work and worse all, a general state of unrest and disorganization that makes it very difficult to obtain continued production.

These factors have resulted in an enormous increase in the cost of production, ranging from 75 to 150 per cent over that of 1913.

It is rather surprising to find how helpless most of the European countries are in spite of the fact that in many quarters it had been predicted that after the war they would flood our shores with their products and that the unemployed of these foreign nations would seek a refuge in this country.

REPUBLICAN FERRETING

The republican congress has investigating committees out to find evidence of democratic extravagance and it is alleged that their expenditures in some lines of inquiry are fully as extravagant as anything authorized during the war.
Political ferrets and "snoopers"
are paid five times their usual salary for trying to catch democrats in some kind of crookedness.

It is reported that a staff of 150 expert accountants has been summoned to Washington to go over the accounts of the war department or any other in which the committee may hope to find material from which to manufacture political capital. The investigating committee, under the direction of Chairman Graham, has conducted hearings in a high handed manner, throwing out charges of malfeasance and ex-
any evidence to support such charges and even before the departments involved had been given an opportunity to make answer.

The case of John D. Ryan, head of the aviation department, is an example of such unfair action. But the committee has not been able to implicate Ryan in any unfair transaction, yet he objects to the evident attempt to besmirch the character, honesty and standing of men who during the war rendered valuable service to the government.

Surely the republicans must be in sore straits for political issues
when they are going to such unwarranted extremes to find some scandal with which to discredit the Wilson administration. At a time when so many important issues await the attention of congress, it is really disgraceful to find congress wasting time in political investigations that can serve no useful purpose.

When it is all over an investigation of the committee's methods would probably show more scandalous conduct than could be found in any of the departments during the war, even when there was an appeal to cut all red tape and push the business through with all possible haste.

LEWIS ATTACKS PRESIDENT

John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, has made a very bitter and brazen attack upon President Wilson for presuming to interfere in the threatened strike of the coal miners. He charges that the miners have an absolute right to strike if they so desire and that President Wilson, by using the forces of the government in preventing disorder and in protecting those who may remain at work, is usurping power that does not rightly belong to him.

Verily, Mr. Lewis has a good deal to learn about the powers vested in the executive of this nation and also in reference to the personal liberty guaranteed to all citizens by the constitution of the United States. He cites the 13th amendment in support of the right to strike under any circumstances.

Throughout his long tirade against the president, he does not once betray the slightest consciousness that the general public has any rights that should be protected or that the lives of the people and the maintenance of organized industry are threatened by the strike of which he has been the chief promoter.

Mr. Lewis will soon realize that the rights of the people are paramount and that they cannot be overridden by any combination of radicals who undertake to set the laws of this republic at naught and who defy even the executive power of the government.

Congress should deal with this question in a way that would hereafter protect the people against such detestable as President Lewis.

Thank goodness the president is improving and the government at Washington still lives.

When I was eighteen years of age, I was compelled to undergo an operation.
As a result, I was left very weak and as time did not seem to improve matters much, they gave me RED PILLS, and it was not long before I noticed a gradual improvement in my state of health, and I quickly regained the strength I had lost through my operation.
I am now twenty-two years of age, am in perfect health, full of life, and have a position in a local store, which I am able to attend to regularly. I take pleasure in recommending RED PILLS to young girls who suffer like I did.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

If you happen to be a mere man you are undoubtedly aware that the local barber shops are getting fairly good prices for their services these days, even though the barbers themselves say that such establishments in other cities are getting higher prices than those in Lowell. However, one local barber was telling me yesterday that if all his patrons were like one he had a few days ago there would be very little complaining over the high cost of shaves and haircuts and life in general for the wielder of razor and shears would be much more enjoyable.
This patron in question, the barber said, paid no less than $2 for about half an hour's work while he was in the chair. "How did he manage to run up such a bill as that?" I asked.
"Well," came back the barber, "he started in with a haircut, then he wanted a shave, then a shampoo, next a massage and finally had his hair singled. The combination cost him $2 and he came across without a whimper. In addition, he slipped me a quarter tip. That's the kind of a customer that pays in these days."

Those who know how wonderfully good apples are to eat "au naturel"— and likewise in pies and sauce—will regret that so many good apples are going into the crushers of the elder mills this year; although new cider has a most delicious taste and is undoubtedly of more or less benefit from a health standpoint, while old cider mitigates the terrors of "prohibition amendments" for the farming gentry.
But the apple aforesaid is a king in the fruit line too little appreciated because of its commonness throughout the Eastern states. Apples contain more iron, I am told, necessary to provide red corpuscles, than is obtained from flour, commonly referred to as the staff of life when in the form of bread.
There is also more fuel for the body's energy in a good ripe apple per pound than in beets, string beans, tomatoes.

SEEN AND HEARD

Do you remember when the buggy-were willing to spend your last iron max for the best hitch in the stable?

The girl at the soda fountain is afraid of the electric shaker and when you ask for a chocolate egg shake or something along that line, the dear thing murmurs a prayer before she

Very Poor Offer

A gentleman from Georgia says the labor situation in the south reminds him of this story:

A negro applied to a cotton plantation manager for work.
"All right," said the manager. "Come in the morning and I'll put you to work and pay you what you are worth."
"No, suh, I can't do that," replied the negro. "Ise getting mo' dan dat
now."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Watched the Horse

"Boy, just watch my horse!" said the squire to a countryurchin as he went into the village store.
"Yesir!" replied the lad, touching his cap. Two minutes later, a motor-car came along. The horse reared, snorted and then bolted up the road.
As the unhappy lad was just starting to pursue the runaway, now nearly out of sight, the squire came out of the store. "I'm glad you've come, sir!"
said the boy, much relieved. "I couldn't have watched him much longer!"—

Pompeii's Life

The recent excavations of Pompeii in the ancient street of Abundance have resulted in such extensive finds that the life of the street can be almost entirely reconstructed. The principal discovery is that of a huge "thermo-polium," a kind of public house. This is in a state of perfect preservation, and an exact idea can now be obtained of a Roman place of refreshment. There is a long row of wine jars, so placed that it seems the vintner was in the act of pouring wine from one into the other when overtaken by the catastrophe.

We'll All Come Through

Something keeps a-sayin', when the world is lookin' blue:
"We'll all come through—
We'll all come through!"
It's a mighty cheery whisper to the glovin' heart of you—
"We'll all come through!"
I hear old Trouble, cryin' like a wolf
there, in the Night,
The shadows thick around me, an' a long road to the Light!
But somethin' keeps a-sayin' that the road's a-turnin' right,
And "we'll all come through!"
Prayers, an' tears, an' sighs! for the joys you never know—
But "we'll all come through!"
The shirr'll make the harbor—for there's still a star or two—
"We'll all come through!"
It's the world where we're a-livin'—
It's the work we have to do,
To keep the dark a-singin' like the

Today is the transition period in the life of Lowell War Camp Commu-

be known as the Lowell Community club. The organization carries all of its work and plans to carve a place for itself in the community welfare work of the city.
Because the "war camp" feature of the work has been dropped, it does not mean that soldiers will drop out of the club life. In fact, it will be just the opposite, for even under the new rules and regulations, service men will have free entrance to the club at all times.
Between this date and the new year,
citizens are invited to use the club without charge, but after January 11
the following nominal fees will be asked: One week, 25 cents; one month, 50 cents; three months, $1.25; six

NATHAN A. TUFTS

District Attorney

EDITORIAL COMMENT

"District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts was recently the recipient of a somewhat unusual compliment from Judge Hugh Dubuque of the Superior Court at the conclusion of a murder trial at Lowell in which a verdict of murder in the first degree was obtained. Boston papers have commented favorably upon the words of Judge Dubuque.

"Commendations of this nature have become quite common in Middlesex County since the Hon. Nathan A. Tufts became district attorney—wholly because of the manner in which the Waltham gentleman has conducted the office. Judge Dubuque's reference to the ability displayed by Mr. Tufts simply emphasized the good things which were predicted for him three years ago this fall.

"So impressed was Judge Dubuque, that he unhesitatingly declared that the argument of District Attorney Tufts and his handling of the case were exceptionally able and quite in line with the excellent work which has been done by the district attorney's office during the year that the judge has been assigned to that court.

"That District Attorney Tufts has made good, is the opinion of all who have come in contact with him. The unravelling and successful prosecution of the Wakelin case after it had been dropped for practically a year as an unsolved mystery; the prosecution and imprisonment of a crowd of automobile thieves, the capture of all ten of the Everett hold-up bandits, and the breaking up of an epidemic of robbery cases which took place last winter by the apprehension, conviction and sentencing of twenty-four desperadoes are examples of the work which has been done by District Attorney Tufts with particular effectiveness. These are only a few instances of the activity of this official, but they are characteristic of his determination to make good in whatever position of trust he holds."

"When seeking the nomination and election three years ago in public addresses in Lowell—

I promised that friends and relatives of those involved in the toils of the criminal law would find in the District Attorney a public official willing to listen to their statements and ready to extend mercy and consideration wherever justified.

That promise has been kept.

I promised that hardened criminals whose careers were devoted to preying upon their fellow men would be dealt with firmly and severely.

That promise has been kept.

I promised that I would conduct the office of the District Attorney upon a basis of efficiency and economy.

That promise has been kept.

I place my claim for re-election before the people of this city and I base my confidence in Lowell's support on the treatment accorded the citizens of Lowell who have had business with the office of the District Attorney during my incumbency of that office."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

"He (Tufts) richly deserves re-election."

"The ablest District Attorney that Middlesex County has had for many years."

"District Attorney Tufts is a strong man, an able prosecutor and a fearless fighter."

"That Tufts has made good is the opinion of all who have come in contact with his office."

"Fairness to all regardless of party or other considerations has been characteristic of his administration."

"The good in men has been emphasized as never before...."

The District Attorney has waged the hardest kind of fighting against recognized villains."

"So it is that prisoners vote him a square official, courts respect his judgment, and people acquainted with his methods are with him."

"'Nate' Tufts is going to run again, which is another way of saying that he will succeed himself as district attorney of Middlesex county."

"Making friends in the district attorney's berth verges on the impossible. It isn't particularly pleasant to coop people up in county and state institutions, but it's got to be done, and in the social scheme, the task has been assigned to the district attorney."

"Jail for the deserving, not necessarily for the majority, has been a feature of the Tufts administration. The good in men has been emphasized as never before, and the results have abundantly justified this course. Downright bad ones have had no consideration. The district attorney has waged the hardest kind of fighting against recognized villains. He has drawn a sharp line between the cold, deliberate offender and the offender more or less the victim of circumstances."

EVER HEAR OF POLLARD?

Chauffeur Who Drove Pershing's Car Is Some Fellow—We'll Say

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It is great to be a general's chauffeur. At least, that is the view taken by Sergeant (First Class) Harry L. Pollard, 26, Houston, Tex., who went through the war with General John J. Pershing.

General Pershing's machine, especially built for him at Bridgeport, Conn., and capable of making 80 miles an hour, went with him all over Europe. When he was not riding in it, the big machine was on a special train or a ship. And Sergeant Pollard was with the machine.

And how Pollard "reflected honor upon the job" is a story told by citations and medals and gifts he has to show for his meritorious and courageous work. He was decorated by King Albert of Belgium and by President Poincaré of France, received a personal gift, an engraved silver clock case from General Pershing for "meritorious, faithful and conspicuous" service. He was the guest at the royal palace in Belgium two days and took President and Mrs. Wilson in General Pershing's machine from Paris to Chaumont when

LOWELL DEFEATS NEW BEDFORD, 5 TO 1

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 1.—The New Bedford team sustained its first defeat at home last night when the Lowell team won by the score of 5 to 1. The game was a fast exhibition and the home crowd set a fast pace from the start, garnering three successive hits in the opening period, two of them being made by the bat. Hart drove one into the net in the second frame for the Whalers' only register. The third session was unproductive for both teams. Griffith, the Lowell center, got a head over the left eye in the third period on a smashing drive from Hart's stick, but continued in the game. The score:

NEW BEDFORD

FALL RIVER WINS

FALL RIVER, Nov. 1.—Worcester fell down in defeat here last night by the score of 3 to 2, before 2200 fans in one of the hardest fought and most brilliant games of the season. The Fall River team, led by the local player, was given a big ovation by the crowd when he appeared in his first game, it being Worcester's first visit of the season.

LOOKS LIKE A HIGH CLASS BOUT

The announcement that Roy Moore, the sensational little bantam, who won from Barney McCoy here a few weeks ago, will play a return engagement at the Crescent A. A. on next night has met with the approval of all fans who saw that thrilling fight. Moore came here a stranger to many but his high class work made an instant favorite. The Moore-McCoy bout was the most interesting of the season and when both performers left the ring, the second round question on McCoy's work was the local player's best staged in Lowell in years. The manager, however, was not so sure. He had been beset with requests to bring Moore back, but had considerable difficulty in getting a fightman, nonet in signing. The matchmaker made a good move. Friedman's victory over Gardner Brooks at Lynn on "Sunday" night shows that both boys are training in the goods. Both boys are training in the goods. Both boys are training in the goods.

Republican Rally

reaching the dividing line between normality and anarchy and in a dramatic climax called upon his listeners to give their support to Calvin Coolidge next Tuesday if they wished to show the entire country that they approved the upholding of law and order.

The address last evening was one of the two speeches that the senator was to make in Massachusetts during his present visit. It was also the first public address he has made since announcing his candidacy for the presidency.

Other speakers at the rally were Congressman John Jacob Rogers, who devoted much of his address to a resume of facts he had obtained at the hearing given Mr. Long in Washington earlier in the week relative to his war contracts and said that at best Mr. Long was but a question mark as a public official, while Governor Coolidge had been tried in a crisis and found to possess courage, and District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts, candidate for re-election, who made his plea on principles of Americanism.

Preceding the rally proper was a band concert by the Lowell Military band and community singing in which the audience joined.

It was shortly after 8 o'clock that the speakers made their appearance on the platform and in addition to Messrs. Pointexter, Rogers and Tufts, there were present David Dickson, chairman of the republican city committee; Frank S. Putnam, candidate for senator in the eighth district; Victor F. Jewett and Henry Achin, Jr., candidates for representative in the 15th district, and Commissioner George F. Marchand.

Chairman David Dickson of the republican city committee, introduced Congressman John Jacob Rogers as the presiding officer of the evening.

Dist. Atty. Tufts

The congressman said that he would defer any extended remarks on his part until later in the evening, as one of the other speakers wished to cover other engagements. He then introduced Dist. Atty. Nathan A. Tufts, candidate for re-election as "a fighter on the football field a fighting republican and a fighting American." Mr. Tufts was given a rousing reception.

His remarks were brief owing to the pressure of his other engagement. He said that his opponent had cited three cases that came up during his administration out of nine thousand and based his attack on them. Two of the cases, he said, had been disposed of and the other is now pending. He believed that it was futile for any man to argue on this basis.

He pleaded for re-election on his three years' record in the office of the district attorney. The League of Nations and other such matters were not issues of the present campaign. The one big issue was whether the people of Massachusetts are to do their part in stamping out the anarchy that is beginning to breed here. He said this menace had come right home to the people of the state a few months ago when the homes of several of the prominent citizens of the state had been bombed.

If this thing were to be prevented there must be in office men who were willing and ready and capable to enforce laws for the punishment of these anarchists. His platform, he said, was Americanism and he asked that his listeners be awake to this platform not only on election day, but throughout the 365 days of the year.

Congressman Rogers

Congressman Rogers then gave his address. In opening, he said that the old political issues were not timely or usable in the present campaign.

"This campaign is a campaign of men, not issues," he said. "It is a campaign in which a candidate is personifying a great cause. And that candidate is personifying a great cause not only in Massachusetts, but in the United States.

"For that reason we have a right to discuss men legitimately. On the one hand, we have the democratic candidate for governor who, after all, as a public official is still a question mark.

"I had the opportunity of attending several of the hearings which were given Mr. Long in Washington earlier in the week. Major Dickinson, one of the witnesses, stated that Mr. Long wanted a profit on work which he did not wish. He also testified that Mr. Long wanted a bigger profit on what he failed to do than he would get if he actually finished it.

"Take the republican candidate, on the other hand. He is a lawyer. See his record, collector, mayor, senator, lieutenant governor and finally governor, and he's measured up at every point. He isn't a loquacious man but he's four-square every minute.

"You've got to say that Coolidge is a man of courage. He's shown it this fall. Why should there be a change? I don't say that Mr. Long is corrupt but I do say he's untried. I think Coolidge has tried to do right and I think we need to hold him on the job.

"They say that the election in Massachusetts is going to affect the presidential election, that the choice of governor is being taken as an indication of who's going to be elected president. That's all bunk. But the eyes of the United States are on Massachusetts because of the moral effect that the election is going to have on voters in the west, the south and the central states. Voters have told me that they feel that law and order in their own states will be invigorated if Coolidge is elected and will languish if he is defeated.

"Now for the rest of the ticket. We have two republican candidates for senator. They are of the Coolidge type. Gen. Gardner W. Pearson and Frank S. Putnam are men deserving of your support, so that they can back up Coolidge. And the same is true of your candidates for representative."

Senator Miles Pointexter

The congressman then introduced Senator Pointexter as the principal speaker of the evening. He said that one thing he liked about the senator

REPUBLICANS HOLD RALLY

Senator Poindexter of Washington Makes Forceful Address

Congressman Rogers and District Attorney Tufts Other Speakers

Local republicans held their most enthusiastic and best attended rally of the present state campaign in Odd Fellows hall in Middlesex street last evening, when they introduced Senator Poindexter of the state of Washington, presidential candidate. Senator Poindexter proved to be one of the most forcible speakers heard in Lowell in many a day, both in his physical capacity to bring emphasis to his remarks and in the calibre of his utterances themselves. He described the strike of policemen in Boston as part of a nation-wide movement to undermine the forces of government, said that although he had been one of the hardest fighters in behalf of the interests of labor for years, he felt that it was now

CUT DEAD WOOD IN THE ARMY

Gen. Pershing Would Eliminate Many Officers in Reorganization

Says National Guard Performed Excellent Service in the War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Elimination of dead timber among army officers was suggested by Gen. Pershing before the senate and house military committees today as one of the steps advisable in peace time reorganization of the military establishment.

In nearly every grade, the general said, there were a few officers who had passed the stage of usefulness and should be replaced.

Extending some of his remarks of yesterday, Gen. Pershing said the army department of purchase and finance recommended by him should not take over the buying of articles now secured by the quartermaster general's bureau.

In reducing the army from 500,000 to 200,000 men the general said only a very small reduction could be made in the number of staff officers.

"We had 350 on our staff in France for an army of 2,000,000 men," he said. "We should have needed the same number for half as many."

"Nearly every army officer goes around with a reorganization bill in his vest pocket," said General Pershing. "And if you examine them, you'll find each one arranging good promotions in his own service."

"In France we assigned officers to duty without regard to what their previous service had been and they performed efficient service."

Chairman Wadsworth said some recent promotions had created 53 colonels for 16 cavalry regiments. General

Federal Injunction Ignored and 400,000 Miners Quit Work Throughout Country

Union Heads Predict More Will Join in Strike—No Violence or Trouble Reported—Total Strikers Coincided Almost Exactly With Paid Up Member- ships in Union—North Dakota Miners at Work —Government Busy on Plans

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—The nation wide strike of bituminous coal miners entered its first day with more than 400,000 miners idle, according to estimates by United Mine Workers of America officials throughout the country. Coal operators, for the most part, were not inclined to dispute this estimate, and giving full allowance for all claims by operators which had been reported at noon today, the total of striking miners falls just short of 400,000. From no district was violence or trouble of any nature reported. Despite the federal injunction issued at Indianapolis against the strike, the leaders who generally stated they would disregard it asserted that the strike today would be extended to more than 50,000 miners.

The number of men claimed by the unions to be on strike coincides almost exactly with the paid up memberships on file at national headquarters at Indianapolis at the end of August, namely 401,486.

In 10 of more than 40 states the union men out numbered the total August paid up memberships on file at national headquarters. In most instances these discrepancies were covered in the union claim of an average of 15 per cent. of arrears.

North Dakota reported its 1500 lignite miners at work, in response to orders from Indianapolis headquarters. North Dakota expected to use this coal itself.

Following is a table by states of

State	Number of Miners
Alabama	15,000
Arkansas	4,000
Colorado	5,000
Illinois	50,000
Indiana	25,000
Iowa	11,000
Kansas	13,000
Kentucky	10,000
Montana	4,000
Michigan	2,400
Missouri	2,000
Montana	4,000
New Mexico	1,000
Ohio	40,000
Oklahoma	7,000
Pennsylvania	100,000
Tennessee	2,000
Texas	2,500
Utah	1,000
Washington	6,000
West Virginia	42,500
Wyoming	5,000

Government Marks Time

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Miners must make the next move in the soft coal strike, was the opinion today of government officials.

The strike was a reality today, even though directing heads of the United Mine Workers of America were restrained from activity by federal court injunction. Government officials awaited reports as to the extent of the walkout, for upon this information rested the future course of the government.

Should reports show that any considerable number of miners desire to continue work, the government was prepared to furnish them protection. Should disorders occur, the government was ready with all the police powers at its disposal to put them down.

But the government's activities were not alone in the coal fields. Maximum prices for bituminous coal, formulated to meet war's necessity, were again in effect. Priority of distribution, based in part on the war schedule was in operation.

All steps to protect miners who refused to heed the call of union leaders to preserve peace in the bituminous fields and to lessen in so far as possible the suffering of the public and the disruption of industry incident to such a strike, had been taken. Nothing more could be done the government officials intimated until a way was shown by the strikers themselves. For that reason officials were not prepared to discuss the government's course other than as outlined.

Many Miners Stay at Work

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Reports to headquarters of the coal operators here today said that in the union mines the strike was generally effective, but that in the non-union field many thousands of miners were still at work.

The great Pocahontas field in West Virginia was reported working at practically full capacity and in Pennsylvania 110,000 of 150,000 non-union miners were reported at work.

STATE CAMPAIGN NEARING CLOSE

Final Rallies by Both Parties Show Intense Interest in Issues

Notes and Incidents From the Political Field—The Local Contests

The final hours of the 1919 state campaign in Massachusetts are at hand and within a short time one of the most notable political contests in the history of the commonwealth will have been decided.

This evening and Monday evening will bring the final rallies of the campaign. The two big rallies held last evening by the democrats and republicans will have a tendency to center interest this evening, at least, on local candidates, now that the heads of the ticket have been given an opportunity to declare their platform, personally or otherwise. No formal rallies are scheduled for this evening. Continued to Page 5—Second Section

BIG GAME AT HANOVER

Dartmouth and Colgate Clash in Most Important Game in East Today

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 1.—Football enthusiasts considered the Dartmouth-Colgate match the most important in the east today. The slightly superior weight and experience of the Colgate eleven appeared offset by Dartmouth's ability on slippery fields and relatively stronger substitute players. The probability of fast playing between these well tested teams attracted delegations from other colleges in New England while a large representation of the student body of the New York college accompanied the visitors.

The probable lineup:

DARTMOUTH: Streng, or Myers, ls. Sonnenberg, lt. Crisp, lg. Cunningham, c. Youngstrom, rg. Murphy, rt. Threlkeld, re. Cannell, qb. Robertson, lb. Eckberg, rbb. Jordan, lb. Score and first period: Colgate, 7; Dartmouth, 0.

DISCUSS STEEL STRIKE

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—Five hundred delegates of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor met here today for a two days' special convention in the interests of the steel strike. Included among the delegates were some 200 miners, also representing the five districts of the United Mine Workers within the state.

MONSIGNOR HAMEL DEAD

BIDDEFORD, Me., Nov. 1.—Monsignor Arthur A. Hamel, pastor of St. Joseph's church of this city, died this morning following a long illness. Monsignor Hamel had been pastor of St. Joseph's since 1916, succeeding the late Rev. Fr. P. E. Dupont. He was born in 1858.

PAWTUCKETVILLE HOME WELCOME MEETING

An important meeting of the members of the committee in charge of the home reception for the Pawtucketville soldiers and sailors will be held at the Pawtucketville Home, 730 Broadway, at 7:30 p.m. Monday night. The committee will be a delegation of the Pawtucketville Social Club, and will be in charge of the home reception for the soldiers and sailors who are being discharged from the service. The committee has hoped that the meeting will be well attended.

C. WILL HOLD WHIST AND SOCIAL

Arrangements were completed for the whist and social evening by the Bishop Delany Club, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, for the first social event of the winter season held under the auspices of the assembly in K. of C. hall next Wednesday evening in the form of a whist and social. Andrew Molloy, faithful navigator of the assembly, is in charge, aided materially by a very competent committee.

LIFE SAVING MEDAL FOR LOWELL BOY

For rescuing a small French boy from drowning at St. Nazaire, France, on August 23, 1919, Robert J. Dalton, 84 Adams street, who enlisted in the navy in March, 1917, as baker, first class, on the U. S. S. Arctis, is to be awarded a life-saving medal from the secretary of the treasury, according to official announcement received today by Chief Cary of the local naval recruiting station.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Antonio Fernandes and Miss Maria Augusta Pereira were married this afternoon at 3 o'clock at St. Anthony's rectory, the ceremony being performed by Rev. John S. Perry. The couple were attended by Miss Konda Custodia, who acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Jose L. Custodia as best man. At the close of the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride and later the couple left on a honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will make their home in this city.

THE PRICE OF MILK

Another increase in the price of milk in this city went into effect today, but this time the milk dealers will bear the burden of the increase. According to a notice served recently the producers, beginning this morning, are charging the dealers a half cent more a quart for milk, and it is understood that this price will prevail until Jan. 1 at which time there may be another increase or decrease. The increase was recommended by the New England Milk Producers' association, and went into effect in practically every city in the commonwealth. In Lawrence the retailers have increased the price from 16 to 17 cents a quart, but in Lowell the price will remain the same although the dealers are paying a half-cent more a quart than heretofore.

DIED SUDDENLY

Charles Daggett, a former well known resident of this city, died suddenly in Lawrence, where he had been making his home for the past seven years. Deceased, who was employed in a pawn broker's office, worked all day Thursday and in the evening he retired at his usual time without complaining of being ill. Yesterday morning he was found dead in his bed. The body was viewed by the medical examiner of Essex county and later it was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker W. Herbert Blake in Prescott street, this city. Deceased, who was 65 years of age, leaves to mourn his loss a sister, Mrs. Lettie Harding of this city and a brother, Nathan Daggett of Dexter, Me.

OPEN TUBE RAILWAY SYSTEM

MADRID, Oct. 31.—The tube railway system was opened to the public today. Great crowds besieged the stations curious to investigate the underground mysteries and it was necessary to call for police assistance to regulate them.

SALES BY J. J. ROONEY

Final papers were passed this week for sale of 10,000 feet of land on Highland avenue, from Lot 11 to Lot 15, to Dr. James H. Rooney, through J. J. Rooney.

REWARD COMING TO SERGEANT MAGUIRE

Sergt. Maguire of the Lowell police is due for a little present of $50 from the U. S. naval authorities. The sergeant arrested two sailors last Saturday, who had stolen an overcoat from Philip Breen, financial secretary of the local K. of C. after being sheltered and housed at the organization's rooms the night before, and one of these, Neil F. Kane, whose case was continued in police court for sentence, has been found to be a deserter. Therefore, the sergeant will get the reward of $50.

Kane at first told Judge Enright that he was a sailor on board the U. S. S. Pennsylvania on furlough. He afterwards amended this by saying that he had taken "French leave" of the U. S. naval hospital at League island, Philadelphia and intended to return if he could secure funds.

His case was continued for further investigation and Supt. Welch today received a communication from the receiving ship at Philadelphia stating that Kane was tried by court martial in 1917 for desertion and sentenced to two years in the United States naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H. He was also wanted by the naval authorities for theft and forgery, and after the expiration of his sentence had been placed in the Philadelphia naval hospital to await action on the charges against him. He escaped a few days ago, the communication stated, and had been declared a deserter.

Kane will be turned over to the naval authorities next week after his case has been disposed of in the local court, Chief Welch said.

The case of Charles Dunne, the ex-sailor arrested with Kane for stealing the overcoat, was disposed of in police court today when Judge Enright sentenced him to one month in the house of correction.

The local state aid office began this morning the distribution of $1663 to local veterans and their families, this sum representing the total amount due to be paid on the first of the month.

Miss Alice Weinbeck gave a pretty Halloween party for a number of her friends last evening at the Weinbeck home in Wentworth avenue. Dancing was among the pleasant diversions, while all the popular features and games peculiar to the observance kept the guests in happy spirits. A luncheon was served before the evening came to a close.

HALLOWEEN NIGHT WIDELY OBSERVED

Night of witches and goblins, spooks and black cats, Halloween was celebrated in Lowell last evening by kiddies and grown-ups alike. Halloween parties and dances were in vogue among those who have passed the days of short dresses and knickerbockers, and the younger contingent held sway as usual through the highways and byways of the city, ringing their activities mainly to the ringing of doorbells, blowing horns, appropriating gates and blinds that they shouldn't, and parading through the misty streets in costumes the like of which is seen but once a year.

At the Harrisonia hotel a merry party of revelers held forth in the main dining-room until the midnight hour had struck. Vari-colored lights cast their glow about the room, which was prettily decorated with festoons of black and yellow. Dancing was enjoyed at intervals and an innovation in the form of a novelty cabaret act was "put over" by Miss Richards, a well known Boston dancer. Several out-of-town guests were present and Mayor Perry D. Thompson and his wife spent the earlier part of the evening with the merry-makers.

The Richardson hotel also staged a Halloween party which proved most successful from the point of view of those attending. Bunting, covered with black cats and witches, was displayed about the hall, and streamers of black and yellow were suspended from the ceiling. Dancing, and a cabaret, entertainment by the popular Honey Boy quartet, featured the evening's program.

Epworth League Party

An enjoyable Halloween party was held at Central M.E. church last evening, and the large number of young folks and grown-ups, too—who were present were unanimous in pronouncing it one of the most successful ever staged under the auspices of the Epworth league. Mrs. E. T. Burbeck, as a fortune teller, and the Misses Gladys Harris, Dorothy Cheever and Helen Shaw, in the role of ghouls, added not a little to the evening's pleasure.

Palce Street Church

Palce Street Baptist church also conducted a Halloween party, given under the auspices of the Baraca and Philathea classes of the church. Musical selections by the young folks, games and other time-honored observances of the night of witches featured the program which was thoroughly enjoyed by a large crowd. The committee in charge was: Orval Sayball, David H. Chandler, Esther Garrick, Asenith Rodloff and Miss Irma Gaspar.

REWARD COMING TO SERGEANT MAGUIRE

Sergt. Maguire of the Lowell police is due for a little present of $50 from the U. S. naval authorities. The sergeant arrested two sailors last Saturday, who had stolen an overcoat from Philip Breen, financial secretary of the local K. of C. after being sheltered and housed at the organization's rooms the night before, and one of these, Neil F. Kane, whose case was continued in police court for sentence, has been found to be a deserter. Therefore, the sergeant will get the reward of $50.

Kane at first told Judge Enright that he was a sailor on board the U. S. S. Pennsylvania on furlough. He afterwards amended this by saying that he had taken "French leave" of the U. S. naval hospital at League island, Philadelphia and intended to return if he could secure funds.

His case was continued for further investigation and Supt. Welch today received a communication from the receiving ship at Philadelphia stating that Kane was tried by court martial in 1917 for desertion and sentenced to two years in the United States naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H. He was also wanted by the naval authorities for theft and forgery, and after the expiration of his sentence had been placed in the Philadelphia naval hospital to await action on the charges against him. He escaped a few days ago, the communication stated, and had been declared a deserter.

Kane will be turned over to the naval authorities next week after his case has been disposed of in the local court, Chief Welch said.

The case of Charles Dunne, the ex-sailor arrested with Kane for stealing the overcoat, was disposed of in police court today when Judge Enright sentenced him to one month in the house of correction.

LOWELL COMMUNITY CLUB HOLDS PARTY

The headquarters of the Lowell Community Club for Girls hardly was large enough to accommodate the 700 people who gathered there last night to celebrate the Eve of All Hallowes. It was a joyous occasion and the assembly hall filled with dancers and merry-makers presented one of the gayest scenes imaginable. Peise was forgotten in the whirl of the Halloween wheel and dull care and worry had no place on the program.

Because of the extensive preparations by the club executives and the girls themselves, the affair could not be a failure and in fact it was through this earnest spirit of co-operation that it rose to new heights of success.

It was decidedly a costume party and the variety of gowns and disguises was wondrous to see. For cleverness, originality and beauty prizes were awarded to four of the girls, although the beauty prize had to be withheld because of the utter inability of the judges to make a fair selection from the several hundred of equal worth. At the end of a grand march, the four judges, Benjamin S. Pouzner, Mrs. J. A. Foley, Miss Harriet Bennett and Miss J. MacKinnon Beattie named Gladys Ellis and Allie Gagnon, dressed as country cousins, as worthy of the originality prize, while Mildred Rousseau and Clara Dainton were given the cleverness awards.

The crowd overflowed from the assembly hall into the reception and class rooms where all sorts of festive games were played, mysteries unfolded and fortunes told. Some bobbed successfully for an apple, or found words with fortunes inside, while others flocked around the fortune teller and had their palms (painted) red. Dimey's orchestra played excellent dance music, and a well arranged program continued until 11 o'clock.

The chapresses of the party were Mrs. J. A. Foley, Mrs. George B. Calise, Mrs. Napoleon Demarais, Mrs. Telesphore Paubert, Mrs. Patrick Farrell, Mrs. F. Bachelder, Miss Annie Roussel and Miss Edna B. Blanchard.

The Election of HON. JOHN T. SPARKS

Assures the Eighth Senatorial District of a Senator Non Partisan in His Views and Conception of Public Office.

A Safe Man to Trust and Above All a Capable Man

BECAUSE—The Public Service and personal life of Hon. John T. Sparks should cause every citizen of the district to vote for him, regardless of Party affiliation, or other questions.

BECAUSE—He is near to the people; knows their needs, and in deeper sympathy with measures of Popular legislation than his opponent. His vote will always be recorded for the Greatest Public Good.

BECAUSE—His well known sense of Fairness and Justice as displayed in Private life will apply in his conduct and deportment in public office.

BECAUSE—After all, the labelling of a man, Republican or Democrat, does not make the man or prove Ability. Party designation is largely an element of circumstance or chance. Our form of government simply provides for political parties and political candidates, but there is no law that prevents the voter exercising his best judgment in selection of candidates. If you will vote from the standpoint of MERIT and ABILITY, you will vote for John T. Sparks.

BECAUSE—With all due respect to the opponent of Mr. Sparks, and leaving politics aside for the moment, it is conceded that the personality of Mr. Sparks, his tremendous energy, his capacity to grasp problems of government and his open, warm-hearted service toward his fellow man equips him in a far superior manner to represent you in the State Senate. Knowing this to be true, can you not, Mr. Voter, rise to the situation and vote for Mr. Sparks, regardless of party or of politics?

Government, after all, is simply a question of men. Efficiency in Government depends upon Ability and Capacity of those you elect to Public office. Mr. Citizen, in all your years of voting you will never have a cleaner or more honorable man to vote for than John T. Sparks. He is a real man, a real citizen, yes, and a Capable man for the office he seeks. It should not be a very difficult task for you to vote for such a man as John T. Sparks. Nobody will ever regret having voted for such a man as Mr. Sparks.

Very truly yours,
JOHN W. BRENNAN,
Dracut, Mass.

Pershing said his scheme would prevent that.

"Staff officers have been able to come to congress," General Pershing added, "and get promotions to the exclusion of promotions for officers of the actual fighting arms."

When the proposed consolidation of the chemical warfare service with the engineer corps was taken up a committee asked if use of poison gas should not be eliminated.

"I'd be glad to see that," General Pershing returned, "but somebody else might use it and leave us in the lurch. I would continue preparation for chemical warfare."

Discusses National Guard

The national guard performed excellent service in the war considering its limited opportunity for training," said the general. "Its officers and men had the feeling and quite properly so, that they had not had complete support from the regular army."

Men who have served in the present war should be allowed to enter volunteer organizations, General Pershing said.

"I would classify and assign them to service," he said, "with divisional units, complete by localities, ready for instant call."

National guard divisions should be utilized in the same manner as far as possible," he added.

"I don't know how far the states are going in re-establishing their militia for local use," he continued, "but the governors might be allowed to call on these reserve organizations for help, in case of emergency."

BUNTING EMPLOYEES HAVE BIG TIME

Over 1400 devotees of the great old Jazz had a "wonderful time" last evening at Associate hall. We know they had a wonderful time because we were lucky enough to get there ourselves, and they told us about it.

Before we go any further with this little story it might be well to say that we are referring to the 15th annual dancing part of the United States Bunting company employees. And believe us, folks, it sure was "some" party. We'll say so!

Lots of pretty girls there. Lowell has a reputation for producing handsome young women, and it sent its prettiest to Associate hall last night. And when one can guide a Lowell miss about this spacious hall to the harmonies of Miler-Doyles' Jazz band, throughout the evening, one forgets about the sugar famine, the high cost of living, and other kindred woes.

Only drawback to last evening's event was that it didn't last longer. City fathers here say that dancing parties must come to an end before midnight. Too bad they feel that way about it. We'd have been perfectly satisfied to stay until it was time for breakfast. Lots of other folks said they would, too.

Felt rather sorry for John Calnin, for John had been unanimously elected general manager of the dance and he had to stay in the office and count the money while the other folks were jazzing away the evening hours. John said counting money was all right in its way, but look at the fun everyone else was having while he had to preside over the small change! 'Twasn't fair, John said—and he seemed to mean it, too.

Sandwiched in between the dance numbers were several musical selections given by well known song and dance artists. Frank Roane appeared in several zipling numbers which made a big hit with "those present," and the other soloists were all well received.

But we almost forgot to tell about the diamond ring. The management had offered an honest-to-goodness, look-at-me-now diamond to the Lowell miss who should sell the most tickets for the affair and shortly before the festivities were brought to a close Mr. Roane climbed up on the orchestra stage and proceeded to tell the world that Miss May Flannery was the lucky girl, forthwith presenting her with the gem. Miss Esther Cuddy, who ran close second in the ticket selling contest, was presented a handsome gold bracelet watch by the management in appreciation of her efforts.

Well, that's about all we can tell you about the dance. As we said before, it was some party. If you have any doubts about this fact, we refer you to any of the aforesaid 1400 who were there, and if they don't bear us out we'll just eat our typewriter, that's what we'll do.

Besides General Manager Calnin, there were of course other officers in charge of the dance who did their bit in making the event the success that it was. These were as follows: Assistant

A real "Shepherd of the Hills" is Rev. Hugh Furneaux, militant, long-hiking Presbyterian minister who for 30 years has held spiritual services in remote camps among "hard boiled" men.

Scorning the ease of pulpit oratory and restricted service, he cast his lot among the rough mining and forest camps of the west where by his simple, practical religion and his many ways he instilled the fear and reverence of God. CAR HEATERS ARE BECOMING POPULAR

One of the outstanding features of motor car production this season, says J. P. Gorman of Akron, Ohio, is the trend toward car heaters. Twenty motor car manufacturers are equipping all or part of their line of closed cars with car heaters.

This may be regarded as an indication that before long a heater will be considered as a necessary part of standard equipment to the same extent as a starter.

Comfort being one of the principal features of owner interest car heaters are certain to have a strong appeal to car owners and influence their decision in purchasing a car.

Closed cars particularly have always been sold on the basis of comfort and all-year use. Inasmuch as warmth is essential to comfort in fall and winter, the argument is advanced that a non-heated automobile is very much like a house without a furnace and dependent only on its walls and roof for protection.

Nor is the car owner one to gain by increased use of motor car heaters. Automobile manufacturer and dealer, alike, reap benefits.

Starting with mid-winter or earlier, manufacturers and dealers are obliged to store cars in order to be in position to take care of the spring demand. This is a decided hardship on all concerned, and has ever been a handicap to production and sales. An enormous amount of capital is tied up for a considerable period, not to mention the

TWO PLATOON SYSTEM

FOR THE FIRE DEPARTMENT RECOMMENDED TO VOTERS OF LOWELL BY SPRINGFIELD FIRE CHIEF

READ What Chief Burton Steere Says

Mr. Edward P. Cunningham, Lowell Fire Department,
Lowell, Mass.

DEAR SIR:—

I am in receipt of your letter of yesterday and in reply will try to give you all the information regarding the two platoon system from the added efficiency standpoint, and as it has worked out in the Springfield department.

In the first place, I want to say, that with the few men additional necessary to maintain a good working force during the whole 24 hours, and the off shift, which is subject to call in emergencies, you surely have a more efficient and stronger department.

I will also say that there has been a great deal said in opposition to the system by people who do not understand it, which is absolutely not true. They either do not know or else it is a deliberate attempt to misrepresent the facts. One of these statements is that if there is a fire in progress when the platoon's duty period ends, the men would quit their work and go home. Can you make such an argument as that harmonize with your reason, or with your own experience in the Lowell department? We know that any man who is worth his salt in this business would rather be at the scene of action than not, and that he would be there in an emergency.

It has happened several times in our department that an alarm has come in just as the shifts were changing, and all responded with no inclination to dodge their duty.

Another false argument raised is that the cost is doubled in the municipality. In many cases the two platoon system has been put into operation without the addition of a man. In this city they were very liberal, as they always are with the fire department, and we had additional men.

The new system makes the fireman's position more desirable and attractive to the class of young men who will make the best firemen. This system allows these men to spend part of their time with their families, like other human beings, and to take part in the bringing up of the children.

These are facts, not arguments. The firemen deserve this system as a matter of right. Men who have served their city for years should be shown this much consideration, and they will be, when the question is properly placed before the voters.

One of the new factors which has improved our service is the fact that our men are now contented. They are better satisfied with their jobs. This can be appreciated better by those of us who have been confined within the walls of firehouses for 24 hours, day in and day out.

The authorities of your city and your people, and the men themselves, will never consider going back to the old system, once you have tried the new.

I hope the voters of your city will accept the act by an overwhelming vote.

Fraternally yours,
BURTON STEERE, District Chief.

LOCAL ARMY STORE
REOPENED TODAY

Lowell's retail army store reopened this noon, following a brief shut-down since 2 p. m. yesterday for the purpose of inventory. Hundreds awaited the opening of the doors and the police had to use more or less diplomacy in regulating the entrance and exit facilities.

Immediately arose a great demand for blankets, underwear and the spades, stable brooms, wagon-jacks, etc., which arrived yesterday. Army field boots have not arrived yet, but a lot is expected in a day or two. A requisition for canned asparagus also has been sent in and a supply is expected next week.

The store will remain open for business until 9 o'clock tonight and the Saturday schedule hereafter will be from 12 noon until 9 p. m. On other days the doors will open at 9 a. m. and close at 4 p. m.

THE DEATH RATE

There were 26 deaths in Lowell this week in comparison with 24 last week and 34 the previous week. The rates for the three weeks were 15.52, 11.55 and 16.37. There were ten deaths of children less than five years old and of these, nine were less than a year old. Four deaths were caused by infectious diseases, three by pneumonia and one by bronchitis. Scarlet fever resulted in one death, infantile paralysis, one, and tuberculosis 2. Infectious diseases reported included: Diphtheria, 5; scarlet fever, 3; typhoid fever, 1; measles, 1; infantile paralysis, 1, and tuberculosis, 5.

GEO. LONG IS GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 1.—George A. Long, alias Wrath, was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a Washington county jury, which returned a verdict at 3:23 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The sentence, for conviction of murder in the second degree under the code of Vermont is life imprisonment.

The charge for which Long stands convicted is the slaying of Mrs. Lucinda C. Broadwell, whose nude body was found in a garden within a stone's throw of the business centre of Barre.

It was claimed by the state that Mrs. Broadwell went to the house of Mrs. Isabel Parker in South Main st. to break relations with Long, and that after the crime was committed her body was transported in Long's borrowed automobile from the Parker house to the garden, where it was thrown face downward and where it remained through a pelting rainstorm from about 1 o'clock until 3:30 o'clock, when it was discovered.

The jury was out for 23 hours and 41 minutes. When the minutes lengthened into hours and the jury failed to report a rumor of a disagreement arose. There was a disagreement among the jurors, but it was not on the question of the guilt or innocence of Long. The jury disagreed on the degree of the crime of which Long should be found guilty.

HALLOWEEN PARTY IN POST 120 HALL

A group of colored people celebrated Halloween in an enjoyable manner last night with a program of games and sociability in Post 120 hall, Merrimack street. The decorations and features were in keeping with the season and each of the guests had a hand in making the evening one of pleasure. Rev. S. G. Spottawood of Boston, who is connected with the African Methodist Episcopal Zion church was present for a time and greeted many Lowell friends. The auction of a large cake, sent on from Washington, D. C., was one of the features of the affair. It was made by Mrs. Lewis Ambler, mother of Mrs. James Briggs of this city, who was in charge of the social assisted by a committee which included Mrs. James Thompson, William Hazzard, Mrs. Harry Lew and George Gale. Piano music was played by Mrs. Herbert Ross.

PASTOR ADDRESSES MEETING

An interesting meeting of the members of the Notre Dame de Lourdes parish circle was held last evening in Sacred Heart hall in East Pine street and a feature of the meeting was a talk by the pastor, Rev. Leon LaMothe, O.M.I., who spoke at length on the merits of the St. Vincent de Paul society. Last evening's talk by the pastor was the second in a series to be given in the course of the winter months.

Miss Gertrude Barnum

SHE'S FOR GIRLS AT ROUND TABLE

Miss Gertrude Barnum of Berkeley, Cal., one of the three women sitting at the big industrial conference in Washington, will voice an appeal that the working girl be not treated as an object of pity in the world of industry, but that she be given equal rights with men toilers.

For 25 years Miss Barnum has been associated with problems concerning women in industry. She has probably acted as arbitrator and mediator for more women strikes and labor disputes than any other member of her sex in the United States. Miss Barnum helped to organize and was the first secretary of the National Woman's Trades Union league of Boston. During the war she was chief assistant to the head of the bureau of investigation for the department of labor.

RED CROSS OVERSEAS NURSE WILL SPEAK

Miss Edith M. Ambrose, a Red Cross overseas nurse, who saw considerable service in evacuation and military hospitals in France, will be the principal speaker at a third Red Cross roll call meeting to be held in St. Anne's parish house on Monday, Nov. 3. This meeting will mark the formal opening of the Red Cross drive in the local district.

Tomorrow is Red Cross Sunday throughout the entire country. The driving opening on that day will continue through Armistice day, Nov. 11. It is for the purpose of enrolling members in the organization and to raise a fund of $15,000,000 to finish relief work overseas. Though the war is over there is still plenty of work to be performed by the Red Cross. There is still a considerable army of American troops in Europe and about 10,000 of our wounded men remain confined in hospitals in this country. They must be given care. The Red Cross is the logical and only organization to handle this great and necessary work.

A TEACHER OF "NEW THOUGHT"

Believes "FRUIT-A-TIVES" Highest Result of "New Thought" in Medicine.

MR. A. A. YOUNG

"I am not in the habit of praising any material medicine as I am an advocate of New Thought, but some time ago, I had such a bad attack of Liver and Stomach Trouble that I gave up thinking I did not have it, and took a natural medicine, 'Fruit-a-tives' or Fruit Liver Tablets.

Most gratifying was the result. It relieved my liver and stomach trouble, cleaned up my yellowish complexion and put new blood in my body.

While I am no backslider from 'New Thought', I feel there may be times when a help to nature may be necessary; and if so, I believe that 'Fruit-a-tives' is the highest result of New Thought in medicine.

ARE YOU DISAPPOINTED

often by not feeling well enough to attend some social gathering, or to keep an appointment, on account of an attack of indigestion? Such experience cause disappointment, don't they?

You can ward off these attacks, and keep your stomach and digestive organs healthy by taking SEVEN BARKS, Nature's remedy of roots and herbs.

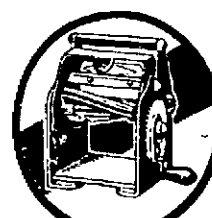

When the stomach is out of order, the liver not working properly, or the bowels are sluggish, a few doses of SEVEN BARKS will stimulate the liver, regulate the flow of bile, expel distressing acids and dangerous poisons, and quickly restore you back to good digestion and normal health.

Stomach disorders are the direct cause of nearly all the ailments that affect the human system and make life a burden, in stead of a pleasure.

Digestive trouble also spoils beauty, robs you of sleep, makes dark rings around the eyes, and ruins the complexion. Let SEVEN BARKS direct your food and tone your stomach, then you may eat what you like and bright eyes will soon return.

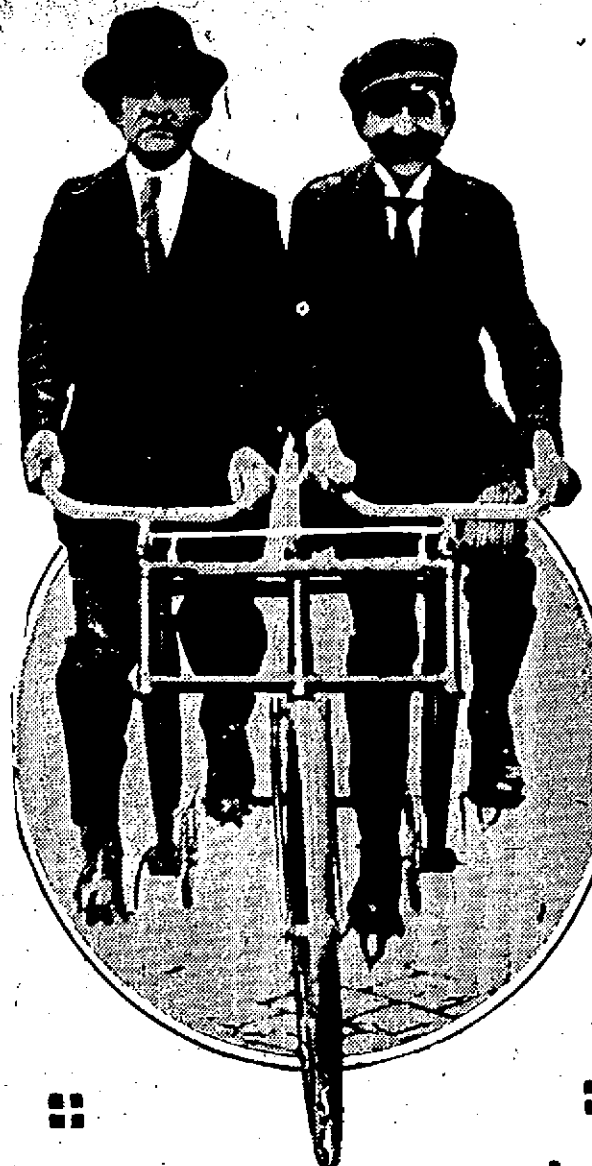

Ask your druggist for SEVEN BARKS. If he does not happen to have it, he will get it for you. Accept no substitute. Price, 50 cents.—Adv.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Anna Engel, 23, gave her life for three-year-old

Lillian Valle. The young woman, a telephone operator at the Westbourne apartment on West 110th street, saw the elevator start upward with only the Valle child in it. She tried to pull herself into the car but fell to the basement, and was killed. The elevator continued to the top of the shaft, with its door open. There it stopped. Lillian Valle was taken out unhurt.

BUDDIES' PARTY AT HIGHLAND CLUB

Within a setting of rare beauty at the Highland club last evening, the Buddies entertained 250 of their friends in most approved Halloween fashion. It was the first social endeavor of a group of young men who have taken the friendly name of Buddies as a club title, but they showed a marked aptitude for cordiality and carried through a program of cabaret and dancing to a most successful conclusion.

The cabaret was a distinct novelty, but was put over with stunning effect.

THE VITAL ISSUE

Organized Labor—Unorganized Labor—Everybody

The one big organization that has the power to protect all your rights is the oldest and most essential organization in all the world—organized government.

Government is law and order—Law and order for the security of the sacred rights of every individual, every class, every group, without regard to race, creed, color or condition.

All who wish security must stand with those who stand for law and order.

Calvin Coolidge

Stands for the kind of organized government that knows no class, that is based upon the best interests of all the people, that has made Massachusetts in peace and war the greatest state in the greatest nation on the face of the globe.

Law and order is the issue in this contest. A vote for Calvin Coolidge will be a vote for law and order, for liberty, for 100 per cent.

RESPONSIBLE UNIONS

EUROPE'S APPEAL FOR AID

It is quite likely that in the near future there will be a clearer understanding of even different legal positions in the matter of collective bargaining. The right of workers to appoint a representative of their number or of outside parties, lawyers or organizations to represent them in negotiations upon questions of wages or anything else is entirely legitimate and cannot be reasonably denied or legally overruled.

But the vast number of unauthorized strikes declared in violation of existing contracts solemnly entered into where collective bargaining is in full force, leads to the conclusion that it is useless to bargain with many of the labor organizations as at present constituted.

On the one side there is responsibility and liability for financial damages; on the other there is neither. Hence it is not natural that many employers are beginning to ask of what use is it to bargain with people who do not hold to their bargain or who do not keep their word.

In every contract the obligation on both parties should be equally binding, but in case of the labor organizations, such as the soft coal miners, there is no responsibility, no liability for breach of contract. The miners are under contract solemnly made by their leaders to run till April next or to the end of the war if it comes sooner.

But for some months, they have been planning to violate that contract which they are free to do without any liability for financial damages. At the present time there are over 300 labor strikes in progress in this country in open violation of contract and in opposition to the express will of the higher union officials.

Thus employers are kept in a state of uncertainty by the unreliability of labor. Strikes are so frequent and declared on such flimsy pretexts that production is greatly lessened and both employer and employee suffer accordingly. The question is asked as to how this state of affairs will be remedied and the answer is, that there is just one way and only one, which is to make the unions legally responsible for observance of their agreements and for violations of the law.

For some years past, professional agitators such as Ector, Haywood and others have been going up and down this land railing against the men who are engaged in manufacturing business and stirring up trouble among the laboring classes wherever possible. They simply urge labor strikes with or without cause, mainly for revolutionary purposes, and the government has tolerated such action. These men on the other hand, have boasted that in so doing, they were wholly within their rights under our constitution which guarantees freedom of speech if properly exercised.

The conviction has now become very general that a great mistake was made in allowing any set of men to go about preaching and actually organizing revolution. That must be stopped. The activity of the Reds must be suppressed by driving the agitators from the country or else by shutting them up where they belong. Such a policy would eliminate the Reds, the syndicalists and the Bolsheviks.

But another change is necessary to prevent these continuous and unauthorized strikes by irresponsible bodies of workers, chiefly, it is believed, under the influence of radicals who have found their way into the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The unions must be placed upon a business basis so that they may be properly identified from the mass, and made responsible in a legal sense for whatever agreements they enter into with their employers.

There would then be no objection to collective bargaining for the reason that the agreements would be made between two responsible parties. It is highly probable that the reforms of the future will include some arrangement of this kind in order to overcome many present abuses, to stabilize industry and to give labor unions a proper sense of responsibility for their acts, whether as parties to an agreement or the authors of a great labor strike.

From Paris comes a very strong appeal made by Pierpont B. Noyes, a New York business man, and member of the Inter-Allied Rhineland commission for an early ratification of the peace treaty, showing that without the United States in the League of Nations to secure permanent peace, the changes in the boundaries between the different nations as laid down in the treaty, will result in many conflicts among the smaller nations that will keep Europe in a state of turmoil for years and greatly retard the return of normal conditions.

He paints a very gloomy picture of the conditions prevailing in some of the war-ridden and poverty-stricken countries, stating that without the help of this country there will be starvation and utter collapse. The enterprise and credit of individuals must be backed by the credit of the United States government in a gigantic plan for economic relief. In order to keep the wheels of industry turning, he says Europe will need to import during the next year at least four billion dollars' worth of raw material and semi-manufactured products; and for full production, she will need $1,500,000,000 worth of American coal. She also needs $2,000,000,000 worth of American foodstuffs.

Evidently Mr. Noyes has studied the situation on the continent and has obtained an accurate view as to the needs of the various countries. The first step he urges is ratification of the treaty and then an effort to promote production throughout this country, so that there may be enough to spare for the nations of Europe now helpless and hopeless without outside assistance.

In this appeal alone, there is sufficient encouragement to the industrial classes of this country to drop their petty warfare with employers and enter upon a year of activity in all industries that would equal that of the war period when the rule of "work or fight" was enforced with great success, compelling everybody to be busy at some useful occupation.

The demand of Europe for American products is greater this year than ever before, but unfortunately, as a result of labor troubles, the manufacturers are not at present in a position to meet these demands as they otherwise would. Of course, whatever can be done in this direction, will benefit alike employer and employee, provided, however, that in trying to help Europe, we shall neither raise the prices at home nor shorten the supply below what is needed.

EUROPE WANTS COAL

The Commerce Monthly for November, issued by the National Bank of Commerce of New York, shows that the countries of Europe will largely depend upon the United States for a supply of coal during the next year or two. It is pointed out that although this country produces more than half the world's coal, England, in the past, has been the chief exporter. As a result of the war, however, England will be compelled to yield the leadership to the United States. On this point, the Commerce Monthly says:

"More than half of the total coal resources of the world are in the United States. During the past ten years, production of coal in the United States has developed remarkably, showing in 1915 an increase of 25 per cent. over the average production during the five years 1905 to 1913. The most rapid increases in production have taken place in Illinois and West Virginia, the output of the former of these states for 1915 being 21,000,000 tons and of the latter 24,000,000 tons over the 1905 to 1913 average. Pennsylvania increased her bituminous output 22,000,000 tons as compared with her average of 1905 to 1913 and anthracite production for 1915 was 11,000,000 tons over the average for the same period."

"While American coal production in 1915 broke all records, output for the current year will be far below that level. If the present rate of output is maintained, anthracite production will be about 78,000,000 tons and bituminous production 432,000,000 tons, a total 508,000,000 tons, the lowest production since 1913. It is believed that anthracite production is adequate, but at the present time it is not possible to determine whether or not the country faces an actual shortage of bituminous coal during the coming winter."

The more important problem, this writer thinks, is not the domestic, but the international coal situation. The shortage in Europe is due to many causes growing out of the war, the chief being a shortage of labor, reduction in the hours of work and worst of all, a general state of unrest and disorganization that makes it very difficult to obtain continued production. These factors have resulted in an enormous increase in the cost of production, ranging from 75 to 150 per cent over that of 1913.

It is rather surprising to find how helpless most of the European countries are in spite of the fact that in many quarters it had been predicted that after the war they would flood our shores with their products and that the unemployed of these foreign nations would seek a refuge in this country.

REPUBLICAN FERRETING

The republican congress has investigating committees out to find evidence of democratic extravagance and it is alleged that their expenditures in some lines of inquiry are fully as extravagant as anything authorized during the war. Political ferrets and "snoopers" are paid five times their usual salary for trying to catch democrats in some kind of crookedness.

It is reported that a staff of 150 expert accountants has been summoned to Washington to go over the accounts of the war department or any other in which the committee may hope to find material from which to manufacture political capital. The investigating committee, under the direction of Chairman Graham, has conducted hearings in a high handed manner, throwing out charges of malfeasance and extravagance right and left without any evidence to support such charges and even before the departments involved had been given an opportunity to make answer.

The case of John D. Ryan, head of the aviation department, is an example of such unfair action. But the committee has not been able to implicate Ryan in any unfair transaction, yet he objects to the evident attempt to besmirch the character, honesty and standing of men who during the war rendered valuable service to the government.

Surely the republicans must be in sore straits for political issues when they are going to such unwarranted extremes to find some scandal with which to discredit the Wilson administration. At a time when so many important issues await the attention of congress, it is really disgraceful to find congress wasting time in political investigations that can serve no useful purpose.

When it is all over an investigation of the committee's methods would probably show more scandalous conduct than could be found in any of the departments during the war, even when there was an appeal to cut all red tape and push the business through with all possible haste.

LEWIS ATTACKS PRESIDENT

John I. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, has made a very bitter and brazen attack upon President Wilson for presuming to interfere in the threatened strike of the coal miners. He charges that the miners have an absolute right to strike if they so desire and that President Wilson, by using the forces of the government in preventing disorder and in protecting those who may remain at work, is usurping power that does not rightly belong to him.

Verily, Mr. Lewis has a good deal to learn about the powers vested in the executive of this nation and also in reference to the personal liberty guaranteed to all citizens by the constitution of the United States. He cites the 13th amendment in support of the right to strike under any circumstances.

Throughout his long tirade against the president, he does not once betray the slightest consciousness that the general public has any rights that should be protected or that the lives of the people and the maintenance of organized industry are threatened by the strike of which he has been the chief promoter.

Mr. Lewis will soon realize that the rights of the people are paramount and that they cannot be overridden by any combination of radicals who undertake to set the laws of this republic at naught and who defy even the executive power of the government.

Congress should deal with this question in a way that would hereafter protect the people against such dictators as President Lewis.

Thank goodness the president is improving and the government at Washington still lives.

"It is the news, the truth and the light." This is the standard The Sun follows in printing city, state and national news.

Left weak after an operation, regains strength with RED PILLS

MISS LEA GADOUA

When I was eighteen years of age, I was compelled to undergo an operation. As a result, I was left very weak and as time did not seem to improve matters much, they gave me RED PILLS, and it was not long before I noticed a gradual improvement in my state of health, and I quickly regained the strength I had lost through my operation. I am now twenty-two years of age, am in perfect health, full of life, and have a position in a local store, which I am able to attend to regularly. I take pleasure in recommending RED PILLS to young girls who suffer like I did.

MISS LEA GADOUA,
10 Congress St.,
Cohoes, N.Y.

RED PILLS are for women only. They are always sold in boxes of fifty pills, 50 cents box, 6 boxes for $2.50. See that the name of the "Francis American Chemical Company Limited" is on every box.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

If you happen to be a mere man you are undoubtedly aware that the local barber shops are getting fairly good prices for their services these days, even though the barbers themselves say that such establishments in other cities are getting higher prices than those in Lowell. However, one local barber was telling me yesterday that if all his patrons were like one he had a few days ago there would be very little complaining over the high cost of shaves and haircuts and life in general for the wielder of razor and shears would be much more enjoyable. This patron in question, the barber said, paid no less than $2 for about half an hour's work while he was in the chair. "How did he manage to run up such a bill as that?" I asked. "Well," came back the barber, "he started in with a haircut, then he wanted a shave, then a shampoo, next a massage and finally had his hair singed. The combination cost him $2 and he came across without a whimper. In addition, he slipped me a quarter tip. That's the kind of a customer that pays in these days."

Those who know how wonderfully good apples are to eat "au naturel" and likewise in pies and sauce—will regret that so many good apples are going into the crushers of the cider mills this year; although new cider has a most delicious taste and is undoubtedly of more or less benefit from a health standpoint, while old cider mitigates the terrors of "prohibition amendments" for the farming gentry. But the apple aforesaid is a king in the fruit line too little appreciated because of its commonness throughout the Eastern states. Apples contain more iron, I am told, necessary to provide red corpuscles, than is obtained from flour, commonly referred to as the staff of life when in the form of bread. There is also more fuel for the body's energy in a good ripe apple per pound than in beefs, string beans, tomatoes, squash, and many other vegetables particular to a well-stocked New England larder.

SEEN AND HEARD

Do you remember when the buggy-riding habit was one of the most popular of outdoor sports and when you were willing to spend your last iron man for the best hitch in the stable?

The girl at the soda fountain is afraid of the electric shaker and when you ask for a chocolate egg shake or something along that line, the dear thing murmurs a prayer before she connects the thing up, then steps back, puts her hand to her heart and sighs.

Two weeks of school day acquaintance resulted in the elopement of Fred Bradbury, 12, and Helen Snow, 13, both of St. Louis, Mo. Bundles of love letters to his girl sweetheart were turned over to the boy's father. It is whispered that when his dad catches up with him, Freddie will take his meals off the mantle for a few days.

Always Was Slow

Edith—Jack's been calling on me for six months. Don't you think it's time he proposed?

Maud—Oh, no; it was nearly a year before he proposed to me.

Very Poor Offer

A gentleman from Georgia says the labor situation in the south reminds him of this story:

A negro applied to a cotton plantation manager for work. "All right," said the manager. "Come in the morning and I'll put you to work and pay you what you are worth." "No, suh, I can't do that," replied the negro. "Tse getting mo' dan dat now."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Watched the Horse

"Boy, just watch my horse!" said the squire to a country urchin as he went into the village store. "Yessir!" replied the lad, touching his cap. Two minutes later a motorcar came along. The horse reared, snorted and then bolted up the road. As the unhappy lad was just starting to pursue the runaway, now nearly out of sight, the squire came out of the store. "I'm glad you've come, sir!" said the boy, much relieved. "I couldn't have watched him much longer!"—Montreal Herald.

Pompeiiian Life

The recent excavations of Pompeii in the ancient street of Abundance have resulted in such extensive finds that the life of the street can be almost entirely reconstructed. The principal discovery is that of a huge "thermopolium," a kind of public house. This is in a state of perfect preservation, and an exact idea can now be obtained of a Roman place of refreshment. There is a long row of wine jars, so placed that it seems the vintner was in the act of pouring wine from one into the other when overtaken by the catastrophe.

We'll All Come Through

Something keeps a-sayin', when the world is lookin' blue: "We'll all come through—We'll all come through!" It's a mighty cheerin' whisner to the grivin' heart of you— "We'll all come through!" I hear old Trouble, cryin' like a wolf here, in the night, The shadows thick around me, an' a long road to the light! But somethin' keeps a-sayin' that the road's a-turbin' right, And "we'll all come through!"

Prayers, an' tears, an' sighin' for the joys you never knew— But—"we'll all come through—We'll all come through!" The ship'll make the harbor—for there's still a star of two— "We'll all come through!" It's the world where we're a-livin'— It's the work we have to do. To keep the dais a-singin' like the light would sing to you! An' light's in sweet home-windows, an' that's earth an' heaven, too! "We'll all come through!"—Frank L. Stanton, in Atlantic Constitution.

LOWELL WAR CAMP COMMUNITY SERVICE NOW LOWELL COMMUNITY CLUB

Today is the transition period in the life of Lowell War Camp Community Service, which from this day on will be known as the Lowell Community Club. The organization carries all of its war impetus into the new phase of its work and plans to carve a place for itself in the community welfare work of the city.

Because the "war camp" feature of the work has been dropped, it does not mean that soldiers will drop out of the club life. In fact, it will be just the opposite, for even under the new rules and regulations, service men will have free entrance to the club at all times. Between this date and the new year, civilians are invited to use the club without charge, but after January 11 the following nominal fees will be asked: One week, 25 cents; one month, 50 cents; three months, $1.25; six months, $2.25; nine months, $3.25; one year, $4.

Membership cards will be issued to

HEROINE DIVORCED

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The "prettiest girl in the woman's motor corps," Madeline Hoffman, who distinguished herself repeatedly during the war, has just obtained a divorce from William F. Hoffman, of the New York brewing family. Mrs. Hoffman is 23 years old. She did heroic work at the Perth Amboy explosion and in a railroad wreck in Brooklyn, during the war.

The number "forty" has been a sacred number not only in biblical but in heathen history, and in later English custom.

THOMAS L. BLANTON

CHRONIC OBJECTOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—They call Representative Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, the "chronic objector of the house." He has insisted on 134 roll calls during the present session of congress. A roll call takes 40 minutes. It costs the government $10 a minute. Total cost $53,600. Blanton was the only member of the house to vote against the $3 minimum wage bill.

Cadum Ointment for Pimples

Cadum Ointment makes pimples dry up and fall off, leaving the skin soft and smooth. Its soothing, antiseptic and healing powers stop the itching at once. Cadum Ointment is also good for rash, bleaches, scaly skin, feline, cold sores, bruises, scratches, eruptions, sores, scalds, burns, chafings, ringworm, scabs, itch, etc. [Cadum Ointment is a French preparation made in America from the original formula.]

In your head

In treating a headache, there is one safe rule to follow—Never use any Medicine except your physician. They may give a temporary relief, but they are likely to weaken the heart. The most common form of headache, arising from a disordered stomach, may be avoided by care in the choice of food. Shun pastry, candy and rich food, and keep your bowels in good condition by using one-half of Atwood's Medicine after each meal. It has been a perfect blessing to thousands to-day, and prove it for yourself. Ask for it or we will mail a free sample on request. Atwood's Medicine Co., Portland, Maine.

RE-ELECT

EDITORIAL COMMENT

"District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts was recently the recipient of a somewhat unusual compliment from Judge Hugh Dubuque of the Superior Court at the conclusion of a murder trial at Lowell in which a verdict of murder in the first degree was obtained. Boston papers have commented favorably upon the words of Judge Dubuque.

"Commendations of this nature have become quite common in Middlesex County since the Hon. Nathan A. Tufts became district attorney—wholly because of the manner in which the Waltham gentleman has conducted the office. Judge Dubuque's reference to the ability displayed by Mr. Tufts simply emphasized the good things which were predicted for him three years ago this fall.

"So impressed was Judge Dubuque, that he unhesitatingly declared that the argument of District Attorney Tufts and his handling of the case were exceptionally able and quite in line with the excellent work which has been done by the district attorney's office during the year that the judge has been assigned to that court.

"That District Attorney Tufts has made good, is the opinion of all who have come in contact with him. The unravelling and successful prosecution of the Wakelin case after it had been dropped for practically a year as an unsolved mystery, the prosecution and imprisonment of a crowd of automobile thieves, the capture of all ten of the Everett hold-up bandits, and the breaking up of an epidemic of robbery cases which took place last winter by the apprehension, conviction and sentencing of twenty-four desperadoes are examples of the work which has been done by District Attorney Tufts with particular effectiveness. These are only a few instances of the activity of this official, but they are characteristic of his determination to make good in whatever position of trust he holds."

"When seeking the nomination and election three years ago in public addresses in Lowell—

I promised that friends and relatives of those involved in the toils of the criminal law would find in the District Attorney a public official willing to listen to their statements and ready to extend mercy and consideration wherever justified.

That promise has been kept.

I promised that hardened criminals whose careers were devoted to preying upon their fellow men would be dealt with firmly and severely.

That promise has been kept.

I promised that I would conduct the office of the District Attorney upon a basis of efficiency and economy.

That promise has been kept.

I place my claim for re-election before the people of this city and I base my confidence in Lowell's support on the treatment accorded the citizens of Lowell who have had business with the office of the District Attorney during my incumbency of that office."

NATHAN A. TUFTS

EDITORIAL COMMENT

"He (Tufts) richly deserves re-election."

"The ablest District Attorney that Middlesex County has had for many years."

"District Attorney Tufts is a strong man, an able prosecutor and a fearless fighter."

"That Tufts has made good is the opinion of all who have come in contact with his office."

"Fairness to all regardless of party or other considerations has been characteristic of his administration."

The District Attorney has waged the hardest kind of fighting against recognized villains."

"So it is that prisoners vote him a square official, courts respect his judgment, and people acquainted with his methods are with him."

"Nate Tufts is going to run again, which is another way of saying that he will succeed himself as district attorney of Middlesex county."

"Jail for the deserving, not necessarily for the majority, has been a feature of the Tufts administration. The good in men has been emphasized as never before, and the results have abundantly justified this course. Downright bad ones have had no consideration. The district attorney has waged the hardest kind of fighting against recognized villains. He has drawn a sharp line between the cold, deliberate offender and the offender more or less the victim of circumstances."

STOCK MARKET

BRIEF BUT IMPORTANT WIRE DESPATCHES

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Profit taking imparted occasional irregularities to today's brief but active stock market, despite further advance and new high records made by several of the steel and equipment. Foremost features included Lackawanna, Republic, Sloss-Sheffield and Gulf States steels. Prospects for steel, Pullman, Railway Steel Springs and Chicago Pneumatic tool at gains of 3 to 5 points. Industrial Alcohol, Leathers and Sugars shared in the movement. Reactions in shipbuilding and the heaviness of motors and their specialties, also oils and tobacco together with the apathetic tone of rails, brought a partial offset. The closing was firm. Sales approximated 775,000 shares.

PAWTUCKETVILLE HOME WELCOME MEETING

An important meeting of the members of the committee in charge of the welcome home reception for the Pawtucketville soldiers and sailors who participated in the World war will be held Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the vestry of the Pawtucket Congregational church at the corner of Mammoth road and Riverside street. It is expected that present at the meeting will be a delegation from the Pawtucketville Social club, who will furnish data concerning the French-speaking service men of the district. It is hoped that the meeting will be largely attended.

K. OF C. WILL HOLD WHIST AND SOCIAL

Final arrangements were completed last evening by the Bishop Delany assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, for the first social event of the winter season held under the auspices of the assembly in K. of C. hall next Wednesday evening in the form of a whist and social. Andrew Molloy, faithful navigator of the assembly, is in charge, aided materially by a very competent committee.

The assembly is also looking forward to the formal installation of officers by the master of the district, Louis Watson of Boston, later in the month. There is every indication that the affair will be most impressive.

LIFE SAVING MEDAL FOR LOWELL BOY

For rescuing a small French boy from drowning at St. Nazaire, France, on August 23, 1918, Robert J. Dufont, 84 Adams street, who enlisted in the navy in March, 1917, as baker, first class, on the U. S. S. Arctique, is to be awarded a life-saving medal from the secretary of the treasury, according to official announcement received today by Chief Cary of the local naval recruiting station.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Antonio Fernandez and Miss Maria Augusta Preira were married this afternoon at 3 o'clock at St. Anthony's rectory, the ceremony being performed by Rev. John S. Perry. The couple were attended by Miss Konda Custodia, who acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Jose L. Custodia as best man. At the close of the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride and later the couple left on a honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will make their home in this city.

THE PRICE OF MILK

Another increase in the price of milk in this city went into effect today, but this time the milk dealers will bear the burden of the increase. According to a notice served recently the producers, beginning this morning, are charging the dealers a half cent more a quart for milk, and it is understood that this price will prevail until Jan. 1 at which time there may be another increase or decrease. The increase was recommended by the New England Milk Producers' association, and went into effect in practically every city in the commonwealth. In Lawrence the retailers have increased the price from 16 to 17 cents a quart, but in Lowell the price will remain the same although the dealers are paying a half-cent more a quart than heretofore.

DIED SUDDENLY

Charles Daggitt, a former well known resident of this city, died suddenly in Lawrence, where he had been making his home for the past seven years. Deceased, who was employed in a pawn broker's office, worked all day Thursday and in the evening he retired at his usual time without complaining of being ill. Yesterday morning he was found dead in his bed. The body was viewed by the medical examiner of Essex county and later it was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker W. Herbert Blake in Prescott street, this city. Deceased, who was 65 years of age, leaves to mourn his loss a sister, Mrs. Lettie Harling of this city and a brother, Nathan Daggitt of Dexter, Me.

OPEN TUBE RAILWAY SYSTEM

MADRID, Oct. 31.—The tube railway system was opened to the public today. Great crowds besieged the stations curious to investigate the underground mysteries and it was necessary to call for police assistance to regulate them.

ARREST EXPECTED IN DRACUT MURDER CASE

An arrest is expected the early part of next week in the Fortuna murder case, according to the state and Dracut officers conducting the investigation. The work of searching out and running down clues has been going on quietly for the past few days and the police announced today that real developments were expected very shortly.

Mrs. Fortuna's body was found in the woods on Edge hill, Dracut, two weeks ago tomorrow, although her disappearance dated back to the first week in September. During the two weeks which have elapsed since the discovery of the body, Joseph Fortuna, divorced husband of the dead woman; Andrew Gaslenela, her fiancé, and Leon Taber, a former operative at the Massachusetts mills, have been detained by the police and questioned. None of the three was held, however, as it was said that substantial alibis were advanced in each instance.

With the elimination of these three men, it was believed that the police had exhausted all surface clues and such belief seems to have been substantiated by today's statement to the effect that a development from an entirely new quarter is expected within a comparatively short time.

NEWS OF THE DAY IN THE POLICE COURT

Found guilty of carrying a revolver without a permit, Joseph P. Butler, of Graniteville, was fined $100 in police court today. A drunkenness charge against him was also dropped. Butler said that he had been camping in Graniteville for some time and had kept the weapon at the camp for protection. He came down to Lowell last night to get a permit from Supt. Welch to carry the gun, he said, but fell in with some friends who supplied him with "jacky" and forgot all about his errand. He had the revolver in his pocket when arrested.

Matthew T. Meera, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who according to the testimony of a Manchester, N. H. man in police court yesterday had tried to throw him over the Thorndike street bridge Thursday afternoon because he wouldn't ante up his loose change, drew down a suspended sentence to the house of correction today on a drunkenness charge, and was ordered to lose no time in returning to his home town. Joseph P. Campbell, charged with falling to stop and give his name and address after causing injury to property, had his case continued with the understanding that civil satisfaction will be made. According to testimony, Campbell had backed his auto into a bicycle owned by Patrolman Bagley one day recently and had not stopped to inquire into the extent of the damage, which had been considerable.

Found guilty of violating the automobile laws, Charles Monapelas was fined $10.

REWARD COMING TO SERGEANT MAGUIRE

Sergeant Maguire of the Lowell police is due for a little present of $50 from the U. S. naval authorities. The sergeant arrested two sailors last Saturday, who had stolen an overcoat from Philip Brown, financial secretary of the local K. of C. after being sheltered and housed at the organization's rooms the night before, and one of these, Neil F. Kane, whose case was continued in police court for sentence, has been found to be a deserter. Therefore, the sergeant will get the aforesaid fifty.

Kane at first told Judge Wright that he was a sailor on board the U. S. S. Pennsylvania on furlough. He afterwards amended this by saying that he had taken "French leave" of the U. S. naval hospital at League Island, Philadelphia and intended to return to it could secure funds.

His case was continued for further investigation and Supt. Welch today received a communication from the receiving ship at Philadelphia stating that Kane was tried by court martial in 1917 for desertion and sentenced to two years in the United States naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H. He was also wanted by the naval authorities for theft and forgery, and after the expiration of his sentence had been placed in the Philadelphia naval hospital to await action on the charges against him. He escaped a few days ago, the communication stated, and had been declared a deserter.

Kane will be turned over to the naval authorities next week after his case has been disposed of in the local court, Chief Welch said.

The case of Charles Dupre, the ex-sailor arrested with Kane for stealing the aforesaid coat, was disposed of in police court today when Judge Wright sentenced him to one month in the house of correction.

Miss Alice Welbeck gave a pretty Halloween party for a number of her friends last evening at the Welbeck home in Wentworth avenue. Dancing was among the pleasant diversions, while all the popular features and games peculiar to the observance kept the guests in happy spirits. A luncheon was served before the evening came to a close.

HALLOWEEN NIGHT WIDELY OBSERVED

Night of witches and goblins, spooks and black cats, Halloween was celebrated in Lowell last evening by kiddies and grown-ups alike. Halloween parties and dances were in vogue among those who have passed the days of short dresses and knickerbockers, and the younger contingent held sway as usual through the highways and byways of the city, confining their activities mainly to the ringing of doorbells, blowing horns, appropriating gates and blinds that they shouldn't, and parading through the misty streets in costumes the like of which is seen but once a year.

At the Harrisonia hotel a merry party of revelers held forth in the main dining-room until the midnight hour had struck. Vari-colored lights cast their glow about the room, which was prettily decorated with festoons of black and yellow. Dancing was enjoyed at intervals and an innovation in the form of a novelty cabaret act was "put over" by Miss Richards, a well known Boston dancer. Several out-of-town guests were present and Mayor Perry D. Thompson and his wife spent the earlier part of the evening with the merry-makers.

The Richardson hotel also staged a Halloween party which proved most successful from the point of view of those attending. Dinning, covered with black cats and witches, was displayed about the hall, and streamers of black and yellow were suspended from the ceiling. Dancing, and a cabaret, entertainment by the popular Honey Boy quartet, featured the evening's program.

Epworth League Party
An enjoyable Halloween party was held at Central M.E. church last evening, and the large number of young folks and grown-ups, too—who were present were unanimous in pronouncing it one of the most successful ever staged under the auspices of the Epworth league. Mrs. Eli T. Burbeck, as a fortune teller, and the Misses Gladys Harris, Dorothy Chervet and Helen Shaw, in the role of ghosts, added not a little to the evening's pleasure.

Palce Street Church

Palce Street Baptist church also conducted a Halloween party, given under the auspices of the Baraca and Philathea classes of the church. Musical selections by the young folks games and other time-honored observances of the night of witches featured the program which was thoroughly enjoyed by a large crowd. The committee in charge was: Orval Sayball, David H. Chandler, Esther Garrick, Asenith Rodliff and Miss Irma Gaspar.

LOWELL COMMUNITY CLUB HOLDS PARTY

The headquarters of the Lowell Community Club for Girls hardly was large enough to accommodate the 700 people who gathered there last night to celebrate the Eve of All Hallows. It was a joyous occasion and the assembly hall filled with dancers and merry-makers presented one of the gayest scenes imaginable. Police was forgotten in the whirl of the Halloween wheel and dull care and worry had no place on the program.

Because of the extensive preparations by the club executives and the girls themselves, the affair could not be a failure and in fact it was through this earnest spirit of co-operation that it rose to new heights of success.

It was decidedly a costume party and the variety of gowns and disguises was wondrous to see. For cleverness, originality and beauty prizes were awarded to four of the girls, although the beauty prize had to be withheld because of the utter inability of the judges to make a fair selection from the several hundred of equal worth. At the end of a grand march, the four judges, Benjamin S. Pouzner, Mrs. J. A. Foley, Miss Harriet Bennett and Miss J. Macklin Beattie named Gladys Elia and Aline Gagnon, dressed as country cousins, as worthy of the originality prize, while Mildred Rousseau and Clara Dainton were given the cleverness awards.

The crowd overflowed from the assembly hall into the reception and class rooms where all sorts of festive games were played, mysteries unfolded and fortunes told. Some bobbed successfully for an apple, or found nuts with fortunes inside, while others flocked around the fortune teller and had their palms (pointed) read. Dumfries' orchestra played excellent dance music, and a well arranged program continued until 11 o'clock.

The chaplains of the party were Mrs. J. A. Foley, Mrs. George B. Caisse, Mrs. Napoleon Demarais, Mrs. Telesphore Faubert, Mrs. Patrick Farrell, Mrs. F. Bacheider, Miss Annie Roussel and Miss Edna B. Blanchard.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the undersigned, wish to take this means of expressing our sincere thanks to our many kind friends, relatives and neighbors who by their many acts of kindness, floral offerings and spiritual bouquets helped to lighten the burden of sorrow caused by the death of our beloved father, Thomas Sullivan. We also wish to thank the employees of the Sterling mills for their offerings. We assure all that their kindness will never be forgotten by us.

The Election of HON. JOHN T. SPARKS

A Safe Man to Trust and Above All a Capable Man

BECAUSE—The Public Service and personal life of Hon. John T. Sparks should cause every citizen of the district to vote for him, regardless of Party affiliation, or other questions.

BECAUSE—He is near to the people; knows their needs, and in deeper sympathy with measures of Popular legislation than his opponent. His vote will always be recorded for the Greatest Public Good.

BECAUSE—His well known sense of Fairness and Justice as displayed in Private life will apply in his conduct and deportment in public office.

BECAUSE—After all, the labelling of a man, Republican or Democrat, does not make the man or prove Ability. Party designation is largely an element of circumstance or chance. Our form of government simply provides for political parties and political candidates, but there is no law that prevents the voter exercising his best judgment in selection of candidates. If you will vote from the standpoint of MERIT and ABILITY, you will vote for John T. Sparks.

BECAUSE—With all due respect to the opponent of Mr. Sparks, and leaving politics aside for the moment, it is conceded that the personality of Mr. Sparks, his tremendous energy, his capacity to grasp problems of government and his open, warm-hearted service toward his fellow man equips him in a far superior manner to represent you in the State-Senate. Knowing this to be true, can you not, Mr. Voter, rise to the situation and vote for Mr. Sparks, regardless of party or of politics?

Government, after all, is simply a question of men. Efficiency in Government depends upon Ability and Capacity of those you elect to Public office. Mr. Citizen, in all your years of voting you will never have a cleaner or more honorable man to vote for than John T. Sparks. He is a real man, a real citizen, yes, and a Capable man for the office he seeks. It should not be a very difficult task for you to vote for such a man as John T. Sparks. Nobody will ever regret having voted for such a man as Mr. Sparks.

Very truly yours,
JOHN W. BRENNAN,
Dracut, Mass.

Pershing said his scheme would prevent that.

"Staff officers have been able to come to congress," General Pershing added, "and get promotions to the exclusion of promotions for officers of the actual fighting arms."

When the proposed consolidation of the chemical warfare service with the engineer corps was taken up a committee asked if use of poison gas should not be eliminated.

"I'd be glad to see that," General Pershing returned, "but somebody else might use it and leave us in the lurch. I would continue preparation for chemical warfare."

Discusses National Guard

The national guard performed excellent service in the war considering its limited opportunity for training," said the general. "Its officers and men had the feeling and quite properly so, that they had not had complete support from the regular army."

Men who have served in the present war should be allowed to enter volunteer organizations, General Pershing said.

"I would classify and assign them to service," he said, "with divisional units, complete by localities, ready for instant call."

National guard divisions should be utilized in the same manner as far as possible," he added.

"I don't know how far the 48 states are, going in re-establishing their militia for local use," he continued, "but the governors might be allowed to call on these reserve organizations for help in case of emergency."

Quarter Century Ago

Just 25 years ago at this time a great big rally was held in Lowell by the democrats then booming George W. Field for congress, Hon. Peter J. Brady for senator, and Hon. John E. Russell for governor.

The late E. B. Pierce presided and the speakers were the late Josiah Quincy and Hon. John P. Fitzgerald of Boston, James P. Owens, chairman of the congressional committee, called the meeting to order.

Court Columbus
Says the old Sun of this date:

"Foresters' hall held one of the largest gatherings in its history last evening. It was the occasion of the second anniversary of Court Columbus, A.O.F., and the members of the court and their friends responded in large numbers to the invitation issued."

"Seated on the platform were representatives of the various courts in this city. Such a gathering of officers is seldom seen at a Foresters' assembly. Chief Ranger Bourbioniere of the court in opening the meeting gave a brief history of the court since its organization and praised its efforts in advancing forestry. He cordially welcomed the friends of the court, who were present and dwelt upon the benefits of membership in the order. The court is the youngest in the city, but in point of membership is quite a healthy youngster. Its financial condition also is encouraging."

Some Big Checks Drawn
From the old Sun the following item is taken:
"City Treasurer John H. Harrington drew some pretty stiff checks on the Lowell Trust company yesterday. One was for $216,200.34, payable to the Lowell Institution for Savings, and a bigger one was for $108,133.33, payable to the order of Blakely Bros. & Co. of Boston. These large sums, together with checks for other notes of the city, such as monthly salaries, interest, payrolls, etc., amounted to the round sum of three-quarters of a million dollars paid out by the city treasurer yesterday. This probably is the largest sum disbursed on open account of the city in a single day."

PEERESS ON SIDE OF LABOR

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The government and capitalists fail to recognize the coming of a new world," says the Countess of Warwick. "A world for all men to live in and enjoy the fruits of their labor."

Supper and general dancing, with the distribution of Halloween favors and all sorts of noise-making contraptions, provided a delightful evening of fun and merriment last evening at the Vesper Country club. A fortune teller had many inquisitive customers and many a tale of love and romance came from behind her silken veil.

More than 60,000 persons pass through the entrance of the Kansas City union station, 75 per cent of whom are passengers on the 210 trains that arrive and depart daily.

WASHINGTON'S WELCOME TO THE KING AND QUEEN OF BELGIUM

Richards Portrays Scenes at Banquet and Reception in Congress—Gillett's Speech of Welcome—Mrs. Tilson's Pluck

(Special to The Sun)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 1.—The city is still gay with Stars and Stripes, intermingled with the Belgium flag of red, yellow and black, for the coming of the king and queen of Belgium marked an event that roused all Washington to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. In no other city of the country has the war, and its consequent war work, been so to the front as in Washington. The whole city has been in intimate touch with the war from the moment the United States entered it, and even before that time, so little Belgium and its tragic efforts to stem the tide of blood has long been in its foremost thoughts, perhaps more keenly than elsewhere. The declaration of war by congress, the framing and putting into effect of the draft law, the drawing of the name of the first man to be drafted were things we saw and heard, not things we merely read about. A hundred thousand war workers came to the city in one year to take up the added work in departments. The president and his cabinet, Pershing and March are familiar figures here. Until the armistice was signed the streets were crowded with soldiers and sailors in our own khaki and blue, and in the uniforms of every allied nation. Here came Gen. Joffre and the French mission, Balfour and the English mission, followed by missions from all the other allied countries. Here the peace treaty and League of Nations are being discussed and will be either rejected or accepted. Here is the head of the Red Cross and a great military hospital where thousands of wounded soldiers are under treatment, and where armless, legless, the halt and the blind are seen daily on the street in the uniform of the United States army. So when the king and queen of Belgium reached Washington the whole city rose to welcome them with perhaps a closer sympathy and warmer personal regard than would have been possible elsewhere.

Bay State Figured at Banquet
Massachusetts figured largely in the reception to the king and queen. It was Speaker and Mrs. Gillett who extended to them the courtesies of the house of representatives; it was Senator Lodge who stood beside the king and presented to him the senators as hundred thousand war workers came to the city in one year to take up the added work in departments. The president and his cabinet, Pershing and March are familiar figures here. Until the armistice was signed the streets were crowded with soldiers and sailors in our own khaki and blue, and in the uniforms of every allied nation. Here came Gen. Prohibition Closes Famous Workhouse CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 1.—Camden's municipal workhouse was closed today by prohibition. Known as the "paper pickery" and famous as an institution for the utilization of human derelicts, the workhouse since 1912 has been operated by habitual drunkards committed there by the police magistrates. Waste paper gathered by the highway department has been baled by the prisoners and the city has been reaping a yearly profit of $4000 over the operating expenses and the cost of boarding the inmates. In addition all the brooms for the street sweeping machines and the hand brooms used by the white wings were made by the prisoners at a nominal cost. Only three workmen have been at the pickery for the last week. Their sentences expired some time ago, but they preferred to remain because they had no other place to go.

Sec. of Commerce Redfield Retires

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—William C. Redfield yesterday retired as secretary of commerce after serving for six and one-half years as a member of President Wilson's cabinet. He said he had made no plans for the immediate future. Until the appointment by the president of a successor to Mr. Redfield the assistant secretary of commerce, Edwin F. Sweet, will be acting secretary of the department.

Do You Like White?

Sanitary Enamel Gloss makes a special appeal to the housewife because grease, dirt and stains can be readily washed from its surface without marring the hard enamel finish. Quart, $1.20.

Culman's Enamolin flows as freely as the finest carriage varnish. It may be brushed for half an hour without showing laps or brush marks. It spreads over 600 square feet per gallon. Quart, $2.00.

Flowkote Enamel is one of the best all-around enamels. It gives a surface almost equal to porcelain. It may be scrubbed with soap and water without injuring it in the slightest degree. Flowkote is easily applied. Quart, $1.60.

Bathtub and Refrigerator Enamel for metal lined bathtubs, refrigerators and sinks. This enamel with its heavy tile-like, water and germ-proof surface, will keep them well protected. The finish is not affected by hot or cold water. Half Pint, 45c.

Ripolin Enamel is made in Holland by the old Dutch hand process under a secret formula. Its peculiar advantages are its wonderful elasticity, its permanency, its grainless, washable surface and its exceptional capacity. It rubs and polishes. Quart, $2.30.

Rico's Gloss Mill White is an enamel finish at a paint cost in your place of business or your home you have ceilings and walls where a sanitary light-reflecting, pure white enamel finish is desired. Little expense, you should buy "Barreled Sunlight." About four years ago Coburn's bookkeeping office was painted with this Mill White and today the woodwork looks most as fresh and white as when the paint was put on. Gallon Cans, $3.45.

COMPRESSED AIR TRANSPORTATION AIM OF ITALIAN INVENTOR

New Discovery May Make "Canned Atmosphere" World Motive Power, Relegating Steam to Oblivion

BY E. C. RODGERS
When the giant bicycle-pump, pushed as a locomotive—

That is the promise of an Italian inventor, who claims to have discovered a new method of compressing air. He insists that his invention will take steam engines off railroad tracks and put in their place the air engine, one driven by compressed air instead of steam.

Much secrecy has been thrown about the Italian invention. Patents have been taken out in some countries and applied for in others. When the invention is well covered, it is predicted, the inventor will tell the world how he does it.

Compressing air is no new thing. Neither are air engines.

Indeed the bicycle pump is nothing but a miniature air engine, operated by hand-and-arm power. Larger air compressors now are operated by electrical and steam power. Up to now it has been more expensive to use compressed air than steam. The Italian inventor claims to have overcome this high cost.

Any steam engine becomes air engine by disconnecting the steam boiler and substituting a receiver or reservoir of compressed air.

Compressed air may be carried long distances with comparatively little loss of energy.

Air Pump Old Invention
The air pump was invented by Otto von Guericke of Germany, in 1651. In 1763 the first air engine was used.

Air becomes heated while it is being compressed. Heat causes air to expand. When it cools it decreases in volume and thus brings about a reduction in pressure. To overcome this the air engine must cool the air it compresses. Water is used in the cooling process.

The compressor works this way: Power is used to force air of a piston into a receiver (storage tank), just as it is forced into a bicycle tire by a hand pump. The pressed air, as it emerges from the tank is power, and can be used for driving rivets, locomotives, street cars, or rocking baby's cradle.

The Italian train idea was first advanced years ago, and tested. New York city cross town lines have experimented with air power. In Europe it has met with greater success. There the Mekarski system of compressed air street car locomotion has been used in France and Switzerland.

Air-Pushed Cars
At Bern, Switzerland, car reservoirs furnish a pressure of 440 pounds per square inch. Cars will run four miles with one filling of tank. Paris cars use a pressure of 517 pounds per square inch, and make seven-mile trips without refilling the reservoirs.

Switzerland makes use of water power to press air. This is cheaper than France's steam power.

Both lines carry compressed air reservoirs, and make trips only from one compressing station to another. The Italian method is to pipe the air along the railroad track, and is believed to include a device for "picking up" compressed air while the engine is in motion, just as American locomotives pick up water as they speed along.

Compressed air engines now in use on street railway lines do not give greater speed than cars propelled by electric power. They are not as noiseless. Nor cleaner. At present they must halt every few miles and refill their air tanks.

Great Possibilities
Compressing air by steam power is no less costly than turning steam power into electric power. Pressing air by waterpower would be considerable cheaper.

Transporting compressed air a long distance is more expensive than carrying electric power on account of the losses by friction.

The highest known pressure to which air has been compressed is 60,000 pounds per square inch. This was for a laboratory experiment. The safe limit of pressure for use today is determined by the strength of the reservoir, and has reached a limit at about 3000 pounds per square inch.

If a tank strong enough to hold 60,000 pounds pressed air could be constructed compressed air experts assert that the pressure would haul a train of cars many miles without refilling a tank the size of the ordinary coal tender.

13,000,000 Tons of Coal Mined in Week

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—In the last full week before the strike soft coal mines turned out and railroads moved more than 13,000,000 tons which Secretary Lane considers a record for the country. "This fortunate addition of 13,000,000 tons to the coal supply," Mr. Lane said last night, "fulfills the promise of an adequate car supply made by the railroad administration in view of the approaching fuel crisis. Again the coal industry has shown what it can do with a good supply of cars and the mine workers doing their part of the world's work."

FUR AND VELVET FOR WINTRY DAYS

BY BETTY BROWN
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Sketches above are two winter street costumes, designed to fit every occasion for day-time street apparel. If a fur coat is the acme of comfort and a mode, the one sketched in oval will be a constant source of satisfaction. Short enough not to be a drag upon the shoulders, it is clasped closely around the throat in a collar of the same fur. Wide, cape cuffs reach to the three-quarter length, and a seal belt of medium width marks the waistline in the front, passing under the cape-like back. Monkey fur tips mark the joining of the back panel with the front.

Beside the fur coat is outlined a suit in Russian blouse style, made up of chiffon velvet in one of the new shades of red. High, close-fitting collar, cuffs, edge of jacket, and tips of the long sash belt, are trimmed with gray squirrel. The back of the coat forms a loose panel, from which the belt emerges under each arm, to loop at the front.

TWO-YEAR-OLD MISS IS PERFECT ENGLISH BABY

Baby Violet Booker looks sweet and happy, and very much interested in whatever may happen next in her little world—quite as if she realizes that she is a perfect baby.

Violet was declared to be the perfect English baby at a recent baby show in London. She was born in Ottawa, Can., is two years old and weighs 31½ pounds.
The baby was photographed on her arrival from England aboard the steamship Vaughn.

HALLOWEEN PARTY AT BOAT HOUSE

Of the many formal and informal Halloween parties given last evening, none was productive of more genuine pleasure than the dancant at the Pawtucket boat house, attended by 125 or more couples of young people. The hall decorations, the music and the spirit of cordiality which prevailed attended towards the happiness of the affair and from 8.30 until midnight the true festive atmosphere was everywhere apparent.
The attractive decorations included

orange and black streamers stretched from the side walls to the supporting posts above the floor, black cats and witches and hollowed pumpkins. Favors were distributed and worn as hats during the evening, while showers of confetti and ribbon paper added to the gaiety of the hour. Campbell's band orchestra played irresistible music and was an important factor in the success of the party. Refreshments and punch were served during an intermission period.
The young women who managed the affair included Miss Ada Brophy, Miss Margaret Brophy, Miss Grace Longgan and Miss Mary O'Connor.

Lady Lookabout

With the press of the country unanimously in favor of better salaries for teachers; with the general public educated to the point where they cannot understand why teachers do not get more pay; with the mayors in several cities heading the movement of better salaries for teachers; with the excuse "no money for teachers" being scoffed at in the face of millions being appropriated for schools and public buildings; and the climax finally being reached when the governor of Massachusetts writes a wonderful letter to the mayor of Boston, filled with deep appreciation for the service rendered by teachers and deep sympathy with them for the scant remuneration they receive, and offering, yes, begging, to be allowed to add his efforts to those of the mayor in helping the teachers to get a little more money; with the air surcharged with sentiment of this kind, and yet with not a cent being added to the salaries of teachers, can you blame them if they are questioning the good faith of their friends, the municipal government, and the state government? How long do these dignitaries feel they can deceive intelligent men and women with promises?

The Rain It Rained

As I write, I hear the soft pattering of rain outside my window. So many times have I heard it of late, now softly pattering, now sheeting down, that on my memory is forced recollection of another autumn only a year old, when the drought was remarkable. Water in wells was low owing to unfed springs. Meadows threatened to perish from frost, for their customary blanket of water was not forthcoming. Explanations for the extraordinary conditions were due. Finally they were forthcoming. Distinguished college professors explained that owing to the vast numbers of trees cut down in New England, the "cycle" of precipitation and evaporation, evaporation and precipitation had been so rudely interrupted that there could be no rain until the trees grew up again. Dumbly we accepted the dictum and were prepared for a long period of dryness, when, note what happens: never have we had such munificent rainfall. Strangely, our learned professors are quiet. Not a peep has been heard from one of them in way of explaining the unusually heavy fall of rain. They know the trees are still being cut. They know they have not grown up in a year. Incidentally, they gave forestry a boom, which is a good thing. In the meantime, the rain comes merrily down.
P. S.—Sincerely I hope my readers appreciate the restraint I used in writing the above, not to pun on "in the midst of dryness is wetness."

The Family Budget

In view of the many strikes for higher wages—authorities place the number of strikes in the country today at 38,000—it is most interesting to study the official estimates for a "health decency" budget for government clerks, prepared by Dr. Royal Meeker of Washington, chief of the bureau of statistics. Dr. Meeker's official estimate places the minimum annual expenses of a family of five at $2252.

This is the first time I have ever seen a so generous an estimate. Long ago I expressed the indignation I felt at the estimates given by society ladies on the amount of money a working girl should expend for living expenses. The amounts were so pitifully small and inadequate, that the estimates served only to increase the antagonism between labor and capital.

There is nothing extravagant in Dr. Meeker's estimates as he makes up the budget for a family of five. He limits the wife to a hat and a half, or in other words, three hats in two years, at an expense of $15 per year. It does seem, however, that with good management on the part of the wife, a family of five could live in a fair degree of comfort on an income of $2252, even with prices as high as they are today. As with all reports and figures on home management prepared by a man, these of Dr. Meeker are no exception. The value he places on the services of the wife is so small as to be almost a slight to her intelligence. The report reads: "If the wife be especially competent in the art of shopping; does her own sewing and practices all household economies, the budget may be reduced by $2371."

Comment is unnecessary. "Figures do not lie, but—" you know the rest. In my humble opinion, this manly touch at the close of the estimate places Dr. Meeker's estimate among the many which have preceded him—namely, in the discard. "Sheenmaker, stick to your last!"

GIRL GETS 20-MINUTE SENTENCE FOR AIDING EVADER OF DRAFT

SEATTLE, Wash.—"Twenty minutes in the custody of the United States marshal."

This was the sentence recently imposed upon 13-year-old Farris Peterson, because she elected to be grateful rather than patriotic.

In part payment for kindness received at the hands of Walter Arend, a waiter, she agreed to pose as his wife in order that he might evade the army draft.

She told a pathetic story in court—

how she had been mistreated by a husband who married her in San Francisco at 15; how she had fled from him to Seattle; how Arend had befriended and protected her in the dark days that followed; how she dreamed of his death on the battlefield if she did not save him from military service.

Arend, who had been in the navy, took all the blame for the false questionnaire which he and the girl filled out. Because of his previous good record as a service man he escaped with a sentence of six months in the county jail.

The girl hopes to marry him as soon as she can divorce the San Francisco husband and the jail sentence has been served out.

Homeless New Yorkers driven to the streets by rent-raising landlords are being sheltered and fed in armories. The picture above shows meal time. The other picture is that of a bed-ridden man of 103 years evicted. His wife, 100 years old, is beside him. He has a clean cot to sleep on in the army.

KING DREW A QUEEN BUT HAD TO PASS

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Because Albert, king of the Belgians, doesn't know how to dance, he had to pass up an opportunity to "shimmy" a bit with Emily Drange, chorus girl in the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic. The king went to the frolic incognito. Girls of the chorus passed ribbons to the men in the audience. At the end of each ribbon, except the one the king held, was a box of candy. The king got the prize package. "It was Miss Drange! You're entitled to dance with me," she told the king. "I am very sorry," he replied, "but I don't know how," as he passed his ribbon along to a man at the next table.

INFANT MORTALITY RATE

Lowell had another comparatively low infant mortality rate for the week ending October 25, according to figures which have been received by the local board of health from the federal census bureau. The city's rate was 13.5 making her position 28th in the list of cities which report their infant mortality. Dayton, Ohio, was in the lead with 25, Syracuse, N. Y., second with 22.5 and Baltimore third with 14.3. The average rate was 11.5 and Louisville, Ky., was low with 1.5.

Democratic Rally

Democratic leaders were present, and they agreed that the meeting was without doubt one of the best ever held in the city of Lowell.

In addition to Mr. Long, the speakers included: John P. J. Herbert, candidate for lieutenant-governor; Joseph A. Conry, candidate for attorney-general; Arthur J. B. Cartier, candidate for state auditor; Judge Michael F. Kennedy, of Natick; Hon. John T. Sparks, candidate for senator in the eighth district, and Rep. Thomas Corbett.

Several other candidates were present and occupied seats on the platform. They included Sen. James Brennan of Boston, Rep. Owen E. Brennan, and Charles Stowers, candidates for representative in the 14th district. Commissioner Dennis Murphy, Joseph J. Dolan, William Walsh, George J. Mullin and others were also on the platform.

All the speakers were enthusiastically greeted, and they averred they were delighted to come to Lowell for here were to be wound the most appreciative audiences in the Commonwealth. Judge Kennedy, always a great favorite here, held the vast assemblage spellbound during his eloquent appeal in behalf of Long, Herbert and the other candidates on the ticket. Joseph A. Conry and Col. Herbert were also well received and held the undivided attention of their auditors throughout.

Big Street Parade

Preceding the rally there was a big street parade through the business district. The line was formed at city hall at 8 o'clock. The Lowell cadet band struck up a lively march at 8:15 and about a dozen automobiles, carrying the candidates and guests, fell into line. Following came about one hundred men, who walked. A number of young men carried red fire, while a score of youngsters in Halloween regalia followed the marchers. The downtown streets were crowded and much enthusiasm was shown as the procession passed by. It proceeded down Merrimack street, to Central, to Gorham, to Appleton, to Central, to Hurd street to the Crescent rink. The hall was fairly well filled when the parade arrived, and during the remainder of the evening there was a steady procession of men into the rink. When the principal speakers began their addresses the hall was crowded to the doors.

William H. Sullivan, secretary of the Long committee, stepped to order and extended a cordial greeting to all. He expressed the thanks of the local committee for the splendid turnout and said that such demonstrations argued well for the success of the party on next Tuesday. Mr. Sullivan then presented, as presiding officer of the evening, Rep. Thomas Corbett.

Mr. Corbett, in opening his remarks, made an earnest plea for all the democratic candidates, particularly Mr. Long, whom he referred to as the next governor. He took occasion to extend his gratitude to the voters of his district for the magnificent support they gave him at the primary election.

Charles H. McGlue

Mr. Corbett introduced as the first speaker, Charles H. McGlue of Lynn, candidate for secretary of state. Mr. McGlue stated that the people of this state are aroused at conditions, far he said the governor and his followers have been unable to camouflage the issue of law and order. "I am told," he said, "that the Long sentiment is very strong in Lowell and I hope you will keep up the good work." The speaker then predicted that Lynn and Fall River will give Long a big majority, while it is expected that New Bedford, a so-called republican city, will split about even. Boston, he said, will increase Mr. Long's majority this year to 35,000.

Richard H. Long

At this point the Cadet band struck up a lively tune and Mr. Long was ushered to the stage. The vast crowd stood and cheered. When the applause had subsided Mr. Long bowed in recognition and then expressed his appreciation of the wonderful greeting. He said that it was the source of great pleasure to him to appear before Lowell audiences and that the splendid endorsement given his candidacy last year as well as in the primaries this year made him feel perfectly "at home" here.

He said that the encouragement and the demonstrations accorded him throughout the Commonwealth left no doubt in his mind that he would be elected governor next Tuesday and he appealed to his listeners to elect the other members of the democratic ticket and give him support in conducting the affairs of the state. He made a vigorous appeal for the election of that sterling soldier, Col. Herbert, for his election would give him an expert adviser on all military matters and all things pertaining to the soldier and sailor. Mr. Long then said in part:

"I call attention to the low and contemptible methods of the supporters of Gov. Coolidge which must bring shame to the hearts of every decent republican. The once 'Grand Old Party' of high ideals is being run by the corrupt monopolies in running its vicious campaign. Now must every decent republican have felt when it was widely advertised that a wrecking crew was to be sent to break up rallies of the democratic candidate, and following that, bring the republican national congressmen into an unfair attack on the democratic candidate for governor just before election, first by publishing false charges against the democratic candidate which required him to break engagements to go to Washington, there to be refused by the republican chairman the privilege of presenting evidence making it plain clear that the republican congressmen would use their high office in a manner beneath contempt. Evidence that would show that our country had the confidence and approval of all departments and saved millions of dollars to the government both in the prices of contracts and the low cost of 'canceling' was refused.

"Not content with using such foul methods to ruin the reputation of a Massachusetts industry, the fair name of Boston and Massachusetts is attacked as being lawless and our citizens are falsely charged with being 'anarchists' all for political gain. Even this was not their limit, but governors from states far away are called into Massachusetts to insult and vilify the integrity of the citizens of this great Commonwealth. In the extreme, ex-President Taft is called into Massachusetts to give information about the police strike.

"The supporters of Gov. Coolidge are selling the fair name and reputation of Massachusetts for the purpose of saving Calvin Coolidge from defeat and keeping our state in the control of corrupt interests. How low the grand old party has fallen.

"Gov. Coolidge is supported by Louis K. Liggett of the United Drug Co. in raising money; the American Woolen Co., whose president is reported publicly as attempting to direct the votes of his employees; Henry B. Endicott, a Massachusetts man, a director of the United Shoe Machinery Co., who left Massachusetts to build a big business in New York state, and who was not with Walsh and Long last year. All the interests connected with the corrupt monopolies are in line for Coolidge.

"Falsely claiming that they are for 'law and order,' the real campaign of those supporting Coolidge is a campaign that leads to industrial slavery for all working men and women, whether republicans or democrats, and including all those engaged in our great industries or public employment. All the power of great wealth is being exercised to save its governor, Calvin Coolidge.

"The intelligent voters of Massachusetts will not be deceived. They need no instructions from foreign governors or foreign congressmen, or even a former president, who have no business to interfere in our domestic affairs. These corrupt and powerful interests that drove Theodore Roosevelt out of politics are now, so soon after his death, using his name for their wicked schemes. The friends that drove Theodore Roosevelt recent the use of his great name by the interests that drive him from public life. Massachusetts voters will show on next Tuesday that they are loyal American citizens, and do not approve unfair political methods.

"I am carrying on a campaign for the purpose of building up our great Commonwealth, and no matter how unclean the friends of Coolidge are in their political work. I have the confidence that Massachusetts voters, democrats and republicans, will approve my candidacy.

"Coolidge may have all the support of corrupt corporations and organized wealth. I want none of it. I am a candidate of the law-abiding and peace loving citizens of Massachusetts and will fight their battle to success.

"Reports coming to me from all over the state show that fair-minded citizens regardless of party are disgusted with the campaign of Calvin Coolidge. Reports indicate that I shall win by not less than 50,000 majority, and as governor I shall bring harmony between labor and honest capital."

Judge Kennedy

Judge Michael F. Kennedy of Natick was next introduced and he proved to be one of the most interesting speakers of the evening. He openly denounced the republican party and condemned Gov. Coolidge for his action or rather his silence in the Boston police strike. He gave a brief sketch of the life of Mr. Long and often referred to him as the friend of the working man and as the man who had the members of the Arkwright club jump to their feet and wage a campaign against him simply because he has given his employees better working conditions, shorter hours and higher wages.

The speaker referred to Mr. Long in his fight against the United Shoe Machinery Co. and of his victory. "Mr. Long," continued the judge, "was told by the United Shoe Machinery Co. that he could not use its machinery unless he signed certain contracts, and that started the battle, which Mr. Long fought for America, for liberty in business and for the poor man. He came out victorious and by winning this fight he has done more than any man in Massachusetts bearing the republican label."

Referring to Mr. Long's trip to Washington Judge Kennedy said: "We despise the man who is unfair, for the man who strikes below the belt is a coward. A few days ago republican leaders saw the progress Mr. Long was making toward victory. They saw the handwriting on the wall in every city and town. They could not hit him here, but they stabbed him from Washington, when they accused him of having been a profiteer. Mr. Long immediately dropped his campaign work and made a flying trip to Washington to meet his accusers face to face. He wanted to be heard and he explained that each and every contract he received from the government was given out on bids and each and every contract was awarded to him because he was the lowest bidder. He asked that government records be produced, but his request was not granted. He asked if there was anything wrong in his records and he was told he would know after election.

Referring to the Boston police strike the speaker said the supporters of Coolidge have made it an issue, saying they believe in law and order and that Gov. Coolidge must be re-elected because he believes in law and order. "If Mr. Coolidge believed in law and order," he said, "he would not have remained silent, he would not have appeared at the most critical moment, but would have remained at his post. Mr. Long believes in law and order and had he been governor when the Boston police trouble started he would have been there as William E. Russell would have been there, as David L.

Walsh would have been there, in time to prevent the carnage.

"The policemen, my friends, are men who are being constantly assailed and abused although they patrol the streets of your city night and day in order to protect your lives and property. Many of them have fought in the great world war for democracy, many of them bear wounds for having protected life and property. They are always fighting your cause and they are not deserters as Mr. Long's opponent and his supporters will try and make you believe.

In closing Judge Kennedy said a few words of the democratic candidates for representative and senator in Lowell, and said like Long, they are the men to fight wealth. If they elect them they will do as Long did when he established shorter hours and better working conditions in his shop. They will uphold the traditions of the party and work for your interest. Now my friends, Mr. Long is confident that Lowell will not be untrue to his cause, and he leaves the matter in your hands as a monster committee to boost his candidacy from now until election day."

Hon. John T. Sparks

The next speaker was Hon. John T. Sparks, democratic candidate for senator in the eighth district. He said he was very confident for things in his district look very promising. He paid a flattering tribute to Joseph H. J. Dolan, who opposed him at the primaries elections, saying that "Joe" was a good loser, for although he was defeated at the primaries he is now one of Sparks' best supporters. Mr. Sparks said three years ago he was a candidate for the same office, but at that time he was handicapped by the fact that he did not obtain his nomination in the regular way; that he was nominated on nomination papers. "My campaign in 1916," he said, "was a very mild one as compared with the present one, for now I have an organization composed of influential men in every ward and every town. I am working day and night for my election, while my opponent seems to be very quiet. He has not once appeared on the stump and never took the pains to come to you and ask you for your support. I can and will win this fight, but I cannot do it with your vote alone. I want every one of you to work in my behalf from now until election day so that next year you may be represented in the senate by a man, who will work for your interest.

Joseph A. Conry

Joseph A. Conry, regarded as one of the most effective and eloquent speakers in the Commonwealth, made a strong appeal for the election of Mr. Long and the other democratic candidates. He also denounced the attitude of his opponent, Mr. Allen, for his "heckling tactics." "This man," said Mr. Conry, "who is touring the state, urges votes for the republican candidate for governor on the plea of 'law and order,' is not conducting himself in a very orderly manner." He also attacked the governor for not calling in the duly elected attorney general for consultation on the police strike. Instead of engaging the services of one of the biggest corporation lawyers in the state, "The attorney general," said Mr. Conry, "is the head of the state law department, and should be consulted on all matters pertaining to the state. He is paid for that purpose, and in engaging Mr. Parker as counsel the governor incurred unnecessary expense." He said that when he is elected to the responsible office of attorney general he will insist on performing the duties of the office and he assured all a rigid and impartial enforcement of the law. Mr. Conry paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Long, Col. Herbert and the other candidates and urged all to go to the polls on next Tuesday and vote as their conscience dictates. "If you do this," concluded Mr. Conry, "I know that we will all be successful and that you will place in the state house a set of officers for whom you will never have cause to blush."

Col. John F. J. Herbert

John F. J. Herbert, former colonel in the 26th Regiment, and a typical soldier, was cheered to the echo as he was presented as the final speaker. He is a powerful speaker and made a great impression on his hearers. He denounced the attitude of the republican party for defeating Col. Perkins for the nomination for treasurer, but argued that such treatment was in line with that party's policy. He then made a ringing appeal for the election of all members of the ticket, paying particular attention to Mr. Long. He said that Long's attitude in the past and his plans for the future indicate that he will perform the duties of governor to the satisfaction of the masses and not the classes, that all people regardless of party affiliations will get a square deal and that many humanitarian measures, in line with those now in force in Long's factories, will be enjoyed by the workers throughout the great Commonwealth.

was that he was a pussyfoot. When he wanted anything, he came out openly and asked for it even though it was the job of his president of the United States.

Senator Birdexter arose and no sooner had he got on his feet than the entire audience rose and cheered him enthusiastically.

In opening, he said that it was true, as Congressmen Rogers had said, that if he lived much further away from Massachusetts than he does now he wouldn't be living in the United States. However, he assured his listeners that he felt right at home, as a great many people of the state of Washington had come from Massachusetts. He was glad to come to the state campaign. It was true that the eyes of the nation were on Massachusetts and that the issue which was to be decided next Tuesday was not a political one, but a take possession of the wealth of the world, which it has created. As a matter of fact, labor did not create the wealth of the world. The wealth of the world is the result of the work of a thousand generations of men. The argument is fallacious, but it is leading thousands of people to their destruction.

"Part of the wealth of this country is due to the fact that the country was discovered. Christopher Columbus is entitled to some credit. So are the statesmen that framed the constitution. And the investors and the promoters are a part of the development of modern wealth.

"The problem for the people to determine is whether this menace is to be met, whether the laws are to be held. These are problems that are to be determined in this coming election.

"You hear talk about laws. But laws are of no use unless there are men to administer them. It's not enough to check their evil. Enforce them, and you'll rid this country of its industrial chaos.

"I am very glad that the people of Massachusetts are to have an opportunity next Tuesday to uphold laws of their state and count again putting into office Calvin Coolidge."

The rally closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

HOW'S THE PRESIDENT? THIS TELLS EXACTLY

BY HARRY B. HUNT
Woodrow Wilson, convalescent, sits up daily now in a big cheerful room full of flowers and sunlight.
It's at the southwest corner of the second floor of the White House.
He's building up strength to tackle the knotty problems that have arisen in his month of illness.
But he's building slowly.
He knows much less of what's going on in the world than does any person who reads the papers.
Because of his "statements" issued to save the dying round table, and to forestall the coal strike, followed by his veto of the wartime prohibition enforcement act, many have the impression Wilson is taking up again
the reins of government.
Such is not the case. He won't, for at least another month.
Not a cabinet member has seen him
since he took to bed.
The only persons permitted in his study are his doctors and nurses, his wife and daughters, his son-in-law, W. G. McAdoo, his brother, Joseph Wilson of Baltimore, and his secretary, J. P. Tumulty.

When the cabinet has a problem that seems to demand Wilson's attention, it puts the matter up to Rear Admiral C. T. Grayson, the president's physician. If Grayson agrees as to the necessity he submits the matter to the president.
Wilson senses the growing seriousness of some situations, and he chafes at times against the almost absolute isolation that cuts him off from the world outside. At these times Grayson relaxes a little, and permits discussions of executive matters. But the major part of the president's waking hours are spent in listening to Mrs.
Wilson or Grayson read.
Poetry and detective stories are a special preference, as the president is, especially fond of both.
For about ten days now, the president has been permitted to sit up for a short time each day. First he was propped up in bed, where he could look out the big windows at the south of his room across the White House grounds to the Washington monument and the Potomac river beyond. After a couple of days of this, he was permitted to spend a short time in one of the big, tapestry-covered easy chairs.

A brief daily digest of official business is presented to the president by Grayson or Mrs. Wilson, for the president's information, nothing more.
Grayson sees that there is nothing in the digest that will unduly excite or arouse his patient.
The cabinet may be in extra session almost under his west windows without the president's knowing anything is stirring.
Blossoms enough for a flower show
have been sent to the White House during the president's illness. Only a small part of them can be placed in the president's chamber. Mrs. Wilson sees to their arrangement and acknowledges their receipt.
Telegrams and letters, from humble and high-born, though appreciated and acknowledged, have not been permitted to come to the president's attention.
Later, when he is fully well again, he may see the list of those so remembering him.
Postmaster General Burleson came to the White House last week with a number of things for the president's ear. He had to spill them into Gray-son's ear instead. And Grayson did not pass on to the president a single one.

Set Off Explosives to End Lives

CHATEAU THIERRY, France, Friday, Oct. 31.—(By the Associated Press)—Thirty-five pounds of melinite, set off by a detonator, was the method employed by Adrien Thumerel, and his sweetheart, to end their lives here today. Thumerel, an employee of the explosives depot at Mezy, near here, was charged with the theft of hams from stores destined for war prisoners and was to appear in court tomorrow to answer the charge. He is said to have decided upon suicide. The melinite was made ready in a shack, where Thumerel and his sweetheart met. The explosion which followed was heard for miles and destroyed property within a radius of 100 yards.

Washington's Welcome

President and Mrs. Marshall. The queen speaks English with great fluency and with scarcely a trace of foreign accent, but the king's English was less fluent and bore many foreign ear-marks.

Commenting on the dinner given by the vice president, Congressman Rogers told of many little intimate happenings that throw a strong light on the democratic attitude in which the royal guests bore themselves. They believe in "When in Rome do as the Romans do." For instance, the dinner guests were standing in a big semi-circle, to be presented to the king and queen, who walked in front of them according to foreign custom, but instead of merely bowing acknowledgment of each presentation, both the king and queen put out their hands in a good old fashioned American handshake, to the astonishment of most of the guests. There was no extraordinary formality to the occasion, except in matters of official precedence, which always occurs at state functions here, although a less tactful king and queen might easily have upset customary arrangements.

Gillett's Welcoming Speech

Mr. Rogers told of chatting with a member of the king's suite after dinner and that officer said to him that the only thing the visiting Belgians could not understand about Americans was "their insatiable desire for speeches." Adding that wherever the king had been they asked for speeches, whether it was from the platform of a train, at a banquet or a dinner, and the dinner which had just been concluded was no exception. Perhaps nothing better in the way of a welcoming speech was ever made in congress than the brief greeting extended by Speaker Gillett when the king entered the chamber. Said he: "This is the first time that this chamber has been visited by a reigning monarch and I am sure we are all glad that our honored guest is the one who today establishes this precedent, one whose loyalty is overshadowed by his heroism. This war has developed a hero for every nation—but I think there is universal agreement that there has come out of the war one surpassing figure, who has won the supreme admiration and sympathy of the whole world, the most manly of kings and the most kindly of men, His Majesty the King of the Belgians." The speaker then presented the king to congress and did so with a dignity and ease in no way less than that of the king himself.

The Congressional Reception

Surprises in Congress

In the midst of the jubilant greeting to the Belgian rulers, congress was wrestling with some of the hardest nuts it has to crack. What congress accomplished in those few days was a surprise. No one dreamed the president would veto the prohibition bill, nor if he did that congress would pass it over his veto by an overwhelming majority in less than twenty-four hours. But that is just what happened. Another surprise was the quick action on the Johnson amendment to the treaty. It had been understood that further debate and much delay was in store for it, when suddenly Senator Lodge proposed an immediate vote which resulted in its defeat by the scant majority of two, and the road was cleared for immediate consideration of reservations after a couple more amendments are put before the senate. While the senate was discussing and voting on the treaty
the house was clearing up its slate
so to be ready for a short adjournment on or near Nov. 10th if it is found possible.

Senator Walsh is closely tied to the committee on labor and education which is working on its report of the official visit of the sub-committee to the steel strike section of Pennsylvania. Senator Walsh has also tak-

KING HOBNOBS WITH HOPI INDIANS

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Down among the Hopi Indians King Albert of Belgium had a great time in his swing around the continent. And then the tribe put on their best regalia, brought out the prize papoose and had their pictures taken with the king. Here it is.

TEA SUPPLANTS BOOZE TO WIN VOTES

NEW YORK CITY, Nov.—"Most people never get arrested. Or divorced. Or sue a railroad for $100,000 damages. But:

"Did your landlord ever raise your rent?"

"Did you ever live in a building with a dangerous fire escape or unsanitary plumbing?"

"Did you ever trip on a broken sidewalk and sprain your ankle?"

"Did you ever have trouble in collecting your wages or a small bill?"

"Should there not be a woman judge?"

It takes a woman candidate for judge and a woman campaign manager to show the toughest district in New York how a political campaign really should be waged. The quotations are samples of the appeal they are making.

The candidate is Bertha Rambaugh, a member of a distinguished New York family, and a very successful woman lawyer, and she is running for the job of justice of the municipal court, in or "Battery Dan's" old district in lower Manhattan. This is the district made famous by the "Hudson dusters"—one of the toughest gangs that ever infested a city. Their favorite hangout used to be Spillane's saloon. And it is Spillane's saloon that Miss Rambaugh has adopted as her headquarters.

Over the bar across which used to be passed the whiskey in the old days, today are being passed cups of tea by the hostess to some of her admiring constituency. The bar is lined with cups and saucers, and cakes and goodies, and a "gang" of bright-faced, earnest women occupying the saloon all day listening to instructions, speeches, sipping tea and carrying on the work of electing a woman from the toughest district in town.

Mrs. F. H. La Guardia, bride of the aviator-congressman who is now running for president of the board of aldermen, is one of the campaigners for Miss Rambaugh. Miss Leslie Tompkins is her campaign manager.

And the women don't care a rap that Battery Dan's son, Dan Finn, is the Tammany leader of the first assembly district, which they must win.

Miss Rambaugh is running on a non-partisan platform. On her campaign committee are prominent democrats as well as republicans. It's an all-woman campaign, run by women entirely. The women claim that in one-third the cases tried before a municipal judge, one of the parties is a woman—either plaintiff or defendant.

"The campaign is intensely interesting," said Miss Rambaugh today. "I am making a thorough campaign, going everywhere seeing everybody in my district."

"And I have met most courteous treatment from the men, as well as the women. There are plenty of men who are going to vote for a woman for municipal judge. Why shouldn't they? Many of them say it's quite time that the district had a woman judge."

DAVID ZISKIND BUYS AND SELLS METAL

David Ziskind of David Ziskind & Co. is buying real estate these days, but this does not prevent him from attending to his long established scrap iron and metal business, which he is successfully conducting at 137 Cambridge street. Mr. Ziskind buys and sells second hand machinery of every description and his prices are the best. His telephone number is 2241-W.

HAVE JOHN POWELL EXAMINE YOUR EYES

Many people are suffering from continuous headaches and in a great many cases the pains are due to the fact that the sight is going back and the only remedy is eye glasses. J. Powell, optometrist and optician at 107 Andrews street, is an expert in his line and if you consult him you may find relief. Have your eyes examined by a reliable optician and Powell is one of them.

STOVES AND RANGES AT O. F. PRENTISS'

Just the range you want and at the price you want to pay. Such is the advertisement published in The Sun by O. F. Prentiss of 340-356 Bridge st. and according to Mr. Prentiss there is no camouflage in his ad. This place of business is headquarters for heating stoves and ranges and it may pay you to call in and examine its large display.

MRS. FRANK LEONARD SALES

SHE'S POISON VICTIM

DETROIT—Miss Frances Leonard Sales, 22 year old Detroit society girl is one of five persons dead from eating olive oil served in the Sales home. Botulism is the name given by medical authorities to the poison which caused the deaths, and it is said 25 deaths from the poisoning have occurred in this country within two months. The poison was first known to medical science in 1825.

GIVE QUINN YOUR ORDER FOR COAL

The price of coal has gone up again and despite the warning of the coal dealers, there are still many families in this city who have not yet filled their bins. The manager of John P. Quinn Coal Co., 927-937 Gorham street states that he is ready to fill orders with the best coal obtainable or in other words, the best coal that money can buy. Get your coal in before it is too late, such is the advice of this old and reputable concern. If you cannot call at the office personally, give your order by telephone, 1130 or 2450.

HIGH GRADE GOODS LOWELL PUB. MARKET;

For high quality goods and daily money saving specials, do your shopping at the Lowell public market in Merrimack square. This modern shop has a large and varied stock of the best graded groceries, while a full line of choice meats kept under the most sanitary conditions makes this market a most attractive one. Follow the crowd and purchase your groceries, meats and goods at the Lowell Public Market.

HOW'S THE PRESIDENT? THIS TELLS EXACTLY

BY HARRY B. HUNT

Woodrow Wilson, convalescent, sits up daily now in a big cheerful room full of flowers and sunlight.

It's at the southwest corner of the second floor of the White House.

He's building up strength to tackle the knotty problems that have arisen in his month of illness.

But he's building slowly.

He knows much less of what's going on in the world than does any person who reads the papers.

Because of his "statements" issued to save the dying round table, and to forestall the coal strike, followed by his veto of the wartime prohibition enforcement act, many have the impression Wilson is taking up again the reins of government.

Such is not the case. He won't, for at least another month.

Not a cabinet member has seen him since he took to bed.

The only persons permitted in his

sickroom are his doctors and nurses, his wife and daughters, his son-in-law, W. G. McAdoo, his brother, Joseph Wilson of Baltimore, and his secretary, J. P. Tumulty.

When the cabinet has a problem that seems to demand Wilson's attention, it puts the matter up to Rear Admiral C. T. Grayson, the president's physician. If Grayson agrees as to the necessity he submits the matter to the president.

Wilson senses the growing seriousness of some situations, and he chafes at times against the almost absolute isolation that cuts him off from the world outside. At these times Grayson relaxes a little, and permits discussions of executive matters. But the major part of the president's waking hours are spent in listening to Mrs. Wilson or Grayson read.

Poetry and detective stories are given preference, as the president is, especially fond of both.

For about ten days now, the president has been permitted to sit up for a short time each day. First he was propped up in bed, where he could look out the big windows at the south of his room across the White House grounds to the Washington monument and the Potomac river beyond. After a couple of days of this, he was permitted to spend a short time in one of the big, tapestry-covered easy chairs.

A brief daily digest of official business is presented to the president by Grayson or Mrs. Wilson, for the president's information, nothing more. Grayson sees that there is nothing in the digest that will unduly excite or arouse his patient.

The cabinet may be in extra session almost under his west windows without the president's knowing anything is stirring.

Blossoms enough for a flower show have been sent to the White House during the president's illness. Only a small part of them can be placed in the president's chamber. Mrs. Wilson sees to their arrangement and acknowledges their receipt.

Telegrams and letters, from humble and high-born, though appreciated and acknowledged, have not been permitted to come to the president's attention. Later, when he is fully well again, he may see the list of these so remembering him.

Postmaster General Burleson came to the White House last week with a number of things for the president's car. He had to split them into Grayson's car instead. And Grayson did not pass on to the president a single one.

Set Off Explosives to End Lives

CHATEAU THIERRY, France, Friday, Oct. 31.—(By the Associated Press)—Thirty-five pounds of melinite, set off by a detonator, was the method employed by Adrien Thumerel, and his sweetheart, to end their lives here today. Thumerel, an employee of the explosives depot at Mezy, near here, was charged with the theft of hams from stores destined for war prisoners and was to appear in court tomorrow to answer the charge. He is said to have decided upon suicide. The melinite was made ready in a shack, where Thumerel and his sweetheart met. The explosion which followed was heard for miles and destroyed property within a radius of 100 yards.

Washington's Welcome

President and Mrs. Marshall. The queen speaks English with great fluency and with scarcely a trace of foreign accent, but the king's English was less fluent and bore many foreign ear-marks.

Commenting on the dinner given by the vice president, Congressman Rogers told of many little intimate happenings that throw a strong light on the democratic attitude in which the royal guests bore themselves. They believe in "When in Rome do as the Romans do."

For instance, the dinner guests were standing in a big semi-circle, to be presented to the king and queen, who walked in front of them according to foreign custom, but instead of merely bowing acknowledgment of each presentation, both the king and queen put out their hands in a good old fashioned American handshake, to the astonishment of most of the guests. There was no extraordinary formality to the occasion, except in matters of official precedence, which always occurs at state functions here, although a less tactful king and queen might easily have upset customary arrangements.

Gillett's Welcoming Speech

Mr. Rogers told of chatting with a member of the king's suite after dinner and that officer said to him that the only thing the visiting Belgians could not understand about Americans was "their insatiable desire for speeches." Adding that wherever the king had been they asked for speeches, whether it was from the platform of a train, at a banquet or a dinner, and the dinner which had just been concluded was no exception. Perhaps nothing better in the way of a welcoming speech was ever made in congress than the brief greeting extended by Speaker Gillett when the king entered the chamber. Said he: "This is the first time that this chamber has been visited by a reigning monarch and I am sure we are all glad that our honored guest is the one who today establishes this precedent, whose loyalty is overshadowed by his heroism. This war has developed a hero for every nation—but I think there is universal agreement that there has come out of the war one surpassing figure, who has won the supreme admiration and sympathy of the whole world, the most manly of kings and the most kindly of men, His Majesty the King of the Belgians." The speaker then presented the king to congress and did so with a dignity and ease in no way less than that of the king himself.

Surprise in Congress

In the midst of the jubilant greeting to the Belgian rulers, congress was wrestling with some of the hardest nuts it has to crack. What congress accomplished in those few days was a surprise. No one dreamed the president would veto the prohibition bill, nor if he did that congress would pass it over his veto by an overwhelming majority in less than twenty-four hours. But that is just what happened. Another surprise was the quick action on the Johnson amendment to the treaty. It had been understood that further debate and much delay was in store for it, when suddenly Senator Lodge proposed an immediate vote which resulted in its defeat by the scant majority of two, and the road was cleared for immediate consideration of reservations after a couple more amendments are put before the senate. While the senate was discussing and voting on the treaty the house was clearing up its slate so to be ready for a short adjournment on or near Nov. 10th if it is found possible.

Senator Walsh Remy

Senator Walsh is closely tied to the committee on labor and education which is working on its report of the official visit of the sub-committee to the steel strike section of Pennsylvania. Senator Walsh has also taken part in the discussion of the peace treaty when pending amendments have been up for debate. He early made his attitude on the treaty plain.

The Congressional Reception

lery of the president, throughout the reception, which lasted about twenty minutes. The queen remained standing in the galleries had sat down again after rising and applauding the king at the end of his address, but the queen remained standing, as of course, did the half dozen ladies who had escorted her, including Mrs. Gillett, Mrs. Marshall and the wives of certain diplomats.

COMEDY HIT, "HERE COMES THE BRIDE" AT THE OPERA

House Next Week

Mabel's greatest comedy hit, "Here Comes the Bride," is the selection for the coming week by Messrs. Schaeke for the Lowell at the Opera House. Little is said of this offering so far as to what it is, but it is a comedy of the highest order, and the fact that it is so is no ordinary thing. Among Mabel's successes were "The House of Mirth" and "The House of Mirth," and others equally as well known to playgoers the country over. In presenting it for local consumption, the management gives assurance that every effort will be made to duplicate the original production, and this means much. No expense will be spared in making it the biggest comedy hit of the season, and that too means more for we have had some decidedly good comedies this season. The story concerns a young lawyer who suddenly finds himself without funds. His sum total is 30 cents. The furniture man threatens to come to his room and clean the place of his belongings if he doesn't pay his bill. He gets into a very bad way because of his shabbiness, and then comes his "big adventure." A couple of him flammers appear with a scheme which promises him a cool $100,000. The proposition certainly looks good to the young man and he agrees to whatever proposition is made. The deal is that he is to obtain a divorce and will find himself confronted with a part that will give her exceptional opportunity to make one of her real stage triumphs. And we haven't the least doubt but what she will, judging from her excellent treatment of past characters. The other Players will be pleasantly assigned. In staging the piece J. Francis Kirk will again demonstrate his unusual ability as a director. Order your tickets well in advance, for the sale already indicates capacity houses at all performances. assured that he will not regret the time spent in witnessing their performance.

There is an old phrase to the effect that people "never come back" once they have quit the big game. But Frederick Hallen and Melly Fuller will demonstrate beyond all doubt that they can come back, and with the vehicles with which they entertained thousands 25 years ago. They call their present act "The Corridor of Time."

Gray and Graham are almost synonyms for birth and melody, for the pair are instrumentalists and comedians, and to exploit their accomplishments they put on an act called "On Board a Transport." The girl who was the idol of the men in the trenches was Helene "Smiles" Davis and she will show some of the types of persons she has met. The two ladies will give a mixture of singing, talking, acrobatics and dancing. In addition there will be the News Kinggrams, Topics of the Day and a Bruce Scenic.

ELISE FERGUSON STARRING AT THE MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE—SUNDAY CONCERT

Capable Alice Joyce in "Find the Woman," a dramatic production based on the French axiom, "Cherchez la Femme," will be the leading attraction at the Merrimack Square concert at the Merrimack Square theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening. The second feature will be Dorothy Gish, the Lowell favorite, in "The Hope Chest," another entertaining play.

Elise Ferguson, by many critics called the "American Bernhardt," will be the star in the feature attraction at this theatre for the first three days of the week. She will appear in "The Witness for the Defense," an intensely interesting, mysterious and dramatic story of India. Miss Ferguson is at her best when cast in roles calling for great dramatic power and in this present production she finds ample opportunities to exercise her abilities.

Miss Ferguson is required in the action to shoot her drunken husband. The scene is one of great dramatic intensity and perhaps the strongest provided by the author, A. E. W. Mason, in his story.

During the filming of this scene Captain Ballantyne, the husband, a drunken wreck, portrayed by Warner Oland, seeks to wrest a revolver from Stella, the role portrayed by Miss Ferguson, and in a struggle it is discharged and Ballantyne instantly killed. In falling, he seizes Stella in a loving clutch and all but wrecks her gown from her. Both players were intensely interested in the scene and the ultimate in realism was reached.

The picture is one of exceptional power and affords Miss Ferguson one of the strongest roles of her screen career. Vernon Steel plays opposite the star and heads an excellent supporting cast.

The other feature for the first half of the week will be Vivan Martin in "The Third Kiss," a most absorbing play. The Universal Weekly, a new comedy, and the Chester Ouling Pictures will complete the program.

Dorothy Dalton in "The Market of Souls," and Eugene O'Brien in "Scold Brattie," will feature the Thursday, Friday and Saturday program.

week and be satisfied that the standard of entertainment at this theatre surpasses all other. For the first three days of the week H. B. Warner in "For a Woman's Honor," and Mabel Normand in "Upstairs," will be shown, and during the last three days, beginning with matinee on Thursday, William Farnum in the greatest of the Zane Grey stories, "The Last of the Dukes," and Albert Hay and Elinor Fair in "The Lost Princess." The usual new comedy and weekly twice during the week's run.

For Sunday the following vaudeville artists will appear: Charles Williams, character comedian; Norvello, musician; Phillips Duo, general entertainers; Jennings and O'Brien, comedians; Wallace, Moran and Cochran, harmony singers. The feature picture will be "The Wolf," with an all-star cast.

H. B. Warner does some remarkably fine acting in his new drama, "For a Woman's Honor." The production is the third of a series of super-pictures this famous star has made for Robertson-Cole and distributed by Exhibitors Mutual. Warner portrays the character of a young English physician, who protects the memory of his fiancée's father by paying blackmail to a daring adventurer, and in doing so places himself in a false position with his sweetheart and mother, who believes the adventurer to be his wife. To clear himself would besmirch the character of a dead man and blast the happiness of the woman he loved. The play is well constructed in that the audience knows that the accusation of the blackmailer is false, but there is no way in which he can prove it. Only the death of the adventurer can remove the sinister shadow, and this is brought about in a highly dramatic manner.

Kitchen maid because she can't be a "lady." The story, which has for its background the scullery, the kitchen and the parlors of a fashionable hotel, is full of vigor and the proverbial "pep." Not only is Miss Normand called on to display her talents as an efficient manual worker in the running of a mighty hotel, but she must also play the lady for the hour with all the rights and all the camouflaged haughtiness which her new position seems to impose upon her simple understanding. She accomplishes the difficult task of playing the lady when all her training has placed her in the serving class, with a skill that stamps her as one of the genuine comedienne which the screen has developed.

Those who love to see William Farnum in Western character roles will have an opportunity beginning Thursday matinee and the remainder of the week, when he will be shown in the latest Fox drama, "The Last of the Duanes," a picturization of the popular novel by Zane Grey. Buck Duane becomes a hunted man after he kills a cowboy who has repeatedly threatened his life. "He lone wolfs it," keeping away from civilization and mixing with bands of desperadoes until his meeting with the girl whom he rescues. He gains a pardon through her and by running down a band of outlaws. The picture is fraught with stirring incidents and palpitating drama, characteristic of most Farnum film offerings. The star is seen to particular advantage.

Albert Ray and Elinor Fair, who have gained an elevated position as co-stars in comedy drama, and who have scored heavily in this city several times in the past, open Thursday in "The Lost Princess," a brand new William Fox photoplay, described as a "round-the-world-romance." They are sure to add to their laurels of the past. The story tells of a princess from a faraway land who flees to America and under an assumed name finds something better than a kingdom in the heart of an American boy who saves her from the schemes of conspirators. Both Ray and Miss Fair do some of their best work of seasons.

At both the opening three days and the week-end programs the management will also provide, besides the feature pictures, the very latest comedy productions and the newest Universal Weekly issues.

THE FIGHT ON THE CLIFF

The dangers which our screen actors are sometimes forced to undergo to depict scenes necessary to the filming of a picture are appalling. Take for example the fighting scene on the cliff. This particular crisis, which is really a thrilling chapter in the book, but depicted on the screen it is actually stirring. It is a fist to fist fight on the edge of a precipice 2000 feet high for the girl who has been kidnapped and hidden in a little hut in the mountains. James Rutledge, an ex-convict, whom he has helped to free from captivity, is forced to assist him. Having safely conducted the girl to the hut in the mountains, Willard awaits the arrival of his master, Rutledge.

Almost immediately after Rutledge arrives he sees the form of Aaron King, comes upon King on a dangerous ledge. Crouching, silently, like primitive savages, they face each other. King has no gun and Rutledge is no coward, so they fight hand to hand.

Several times their bodies entwined in each other's arms, they crash against the rock wall and sway to the edge of the cliff. Breathlessly they fight until a shot rings out on the quiet air and James Rutledge suddenly loses his hold and tumbles over the side of the precipice like a fallen image. Who fired the shot?

MAKE COAL LAST

Overcome Shortage of Fuel by Economy

The great American home burns up each year something like 80,000,000 tons of coal. This includes private dwelling houses, tenements, flats, apartments, hotels, every place that man calls home. It is coal burned in grate, stove, furnace.

To get coal into homes takes about 2,000,000 freight cars, which would make a train nearly 20,000 miles long. Besides which householders use coal when they burn electric light or use electric power.

In 1880 the average consumption of soft coal for each person in the United States was only 0.12 ton. Last year it was well over 5.5 tons per person. This includes coal used by industry and transportation.

The average industrial plant wastes 43 per cent of the coal it burns. The average home furnace tender wastes even more. Poor firing is responsible. Coal can be stretched. And the home need not be too cool for comfort either. Knowing how to fire, and doing it that way, saves coal bills. It will make coal last longer in a coal shortage, such as may come during the strike.

First of all, the furnace must be cleaned out. This includes smoke pipe and chimney, a dirty job but a very necessary one. Get the furnace into good working order. A dollar spent here will save several on the winter's coal bill.

The cold air duct should be equal to at least one-half of the total area of all the warm air pipes that leave the top of the furnace. Don't cover hot air registers. It is better to close dampers in pipes near furnace when heat is not wanted in a certain room.

Save coal by adding moisture to the home air. In summer there is more moisture in the air. Winter air is usually drier than summer air. Especially is this true in homes where heat has evaporated moisture.

Dry air feels cooler. Increase the moisture in the room, and you decrease the heat. You'll feel warmer and more comfortable in a room heated to 75 degrees if the air is moist than you would in a 75-degree room if the moisture is all evaporated.

Be sure and keep the water pot in the furnace filled. To further increase moisture in room, place a small pan of water on registers, stoves. Water in the room anywhere will evaporate and increase moisture in air.

You conserve coal by leaving a rather thick layer of ashes on the furnace grate. Shake grate only until the bottom of the ashes shows red.

Clean out the ash pit. Ashes left there prevent fire pot from drawing well.

Save coal by firing less often. This means putting more coal on at a time. Four shovelfuls in the morning will make more heat for a longer time than putting on a shovelful six times a day.

Don't poke the firepot from above. Be content with shaking it from below. Cut off rooms not used. Bedrooms need not be heated; they are not used during the day, and at night the windows should be open anyhow. What's the use of trying to heat the whole outdoors which is what one tries to do when he tries to heat an open window room.

Watch the thermometer. Check for when temperature reaches 65 which is the most healthful temperature of a room, if there is plenty of moisture in the air.

Rooms in which one moves about require less heat than rooms where one is less active.

Study your furnace. Know what every door, draft, damper, is for, and how best to use it to get the maximum of heat from the minimum of coal.

PUBLIC OPINION LEAGUE SPEAKERS

Declaring that congress has no power to enact the prohibition enforcement law without the consent of the people of each state under the "current" provisions of the 15th amendment of the constitution, and that congress has no power to define a non-intoxicating drink as intoxicating, three speakers representing the Public Opinion League of Massachusetts appeared before an audience of nearly 300 men in Elks hall last evening and urged their hearers to register a protest against total prohibition at the polls next Tuesday by voting to instruct their senators and representatives to favor 4 per cent. beer for Massachusetts.

Joseph Maguire of Boston who was the first speaker, said that many of the leading law authorities in the country believe that the prohibition bill is unconstitutional and that each state has the right to decide what beverages shall be manufactured and sold within the state limits.

Joseph J. Leonard of Boston, secretary of the league, was the next speaker. The prohibition question is far from settled, he said. It is most doubtful whether the constitutional enforcement of the "dry" law will become effective January 16, he declared.

"The prohibition amendment has not got public opinion behind it," said Mr. Leonard, "and without public opinion behind this measure it must eventually fail. We are going to win out in this fight to preserve the liberties given us under the constitution, and there will be a great reduction against the prohibition law in the near future, there will be a great reaction against other fallacies in the past."

C. W. Phillips of Springfield, chairman of the league, was the final speaker. He also declared that each state had the right to define what is and what is not an intoxicating beverage, and urged his audience to instruct their representatives and senators to vote for legislation to regulate and license the manufacture and sale of four per cent. beer.

"The anti-saloon league is attempting to tell you what you shall drink," said the speaker. "Bye and bye we may expect they will dictate to us as to what altar we shall kneel at. While our boys were fighting 'over there' and the country's whole attention was fixed on the great struggle for democracy, a small clique of men in Washington—members of the anti-saloon league—foisted this prohibition measure on the country."

"This bill is full of flaws. The whole matter will yet be brought back to the people of the states for their opinion. The country will be waiting with interest to find how we have placed ourselves on this 4 per cent. beer question at the polls next week, and whether we have gone on record as believing in the personal liberties of the people of each state."

"This question transcends all party lines. We must vote for the men who will do their part in upholding the liberties guaranteed to each American citizen under the constitution. This is our chance to show by an overwhelming expression of public opinion that the citizens of Massachusetts are not in favor of total prohibition, and that we do favor the licensing and sale of 4 per cent. beer."

A curious custom, 300 years old, of exacting a kiss from each person not paying a set small fine on the annual Hocktide festival, is still in vogue in Hungerford, Eng.

MONUMENT FOR SERVICE MEN

Preliminary steps for the creation of a memorial monument for the service men of the South End district who fell in the war were taken at a meeting of the committee, having in charge the four-day celebration early in October, held on Thursday evening. The following committee was appointed to consider the advisability of such a memorial: Mrs. Theresa Melancon, Mrs. J. J. Buckley, Miss Maria Markham, Miss Nellie Roane, Daniel O'Sullivan and James L. O'Dea. The committee voted to set aside a liberal sum towards a banquet for the ladies' auxiliary of the organization and also made arrangements for the holding of memorial services in the several churches of the district on Armistice day. The available money was donated in the report of the treasurer which showed a considerable balance on hand, with all bills paid.

BUILDING ACTIVITY DURING SEPTEMBER

According to reports received by Building Age, New York, direct from 107 city building departments, the number of permits granted for September, 1919, shows an increase in estimated value of 275 per cent compared with September, 1918; 172 cities show increases over last year. The total estimated value of contemplated construction for the country is $142,653,410 as against $38,037,420 for September, 1918.

The number of permits granted totaled 38,741 for September, 1919, as against 20,463 for September, 1918—an increase of 90 per cent, the average value per permit being $3682 as against $185. This latter figure clearly shows the influence of war restrictions, when most of the work, outside of government buildings, was necessary repairs.

Much of this large increase over last year is only apparent. Government restrictions were in effect from the last of September (11th Nov. 21), and this curtailment naturally witnessed a corresponding decline in buildings, which was, therefore, at an extremely low level.

Eastern cities show an increase of 25 per cent, 70 out of 74 reporting gains; middle state cities 335 per cent increase, 46 out of 51 reporting gains; southern cities, 282 per cent increase, 25 out of 33 cities reporting gains; and western cities 89 per cent increase, 21 out of 23 cities reporting gains.

As compared with August, 1919, the September total shows a decrease of 10 per cent. This is only natural, as the slack season for building is approaching.

During the past year, the cost of frame buildings has risen considerably and next spring a further advance can be looked for. Houses costing about 20 cents per cubic foot in the vicinity of New York in the spring of 1919, now cost about 40 cents. Yet in spite of this advance, which is typical of all kinds of construction, the demand is so great that people simply must build, and so construction is active and will continue to be so for several years at least in spite of expected higher costs for next year.

The coal strike, if won, will have considerable effect on the building situation. Soft coal, which is at present more than a third cheaper than anthracite, will, of course, advance considerably, if the strike is won, thus forcing up the prices of all commodities depending on coal for their manufacture, and not the least of these will be building materials. Furthermore, freight rates will quite likely be raised to meet the new cost of fuel, and a higher price level all along the line may be looked for.

REAL ESTATE DEALERS

Thomas H. Elliott, real estate and insurance, offices 64 Central street, corner Prescott, reports the following sales negotiated during the past week:

On behalf of the Central Savings bank, conveyance has been effected of a modern suburban residence situated on the Concord road in South Billerica. Local Contests

There is a number of local contests for seats at the state house which the "poll" predict will have a bearing in bringing out a large vote on election day. In the first place, two senatorial contests will depend largely on Lowell for their outcome.

In the seventh senatorial district, Gen. Gardner W. Pearson, republican, a Lowell man, opposes Charles H. Burns of Lynn, the democratic nominee. Mr. Burns has visited Lowell, and expects the loyal support of the party.

This district covers considerable territory, including two Lowell wards and many of the neighboring towns.

In the eighth senatorial district, John T. Sparks, democratic, opposes Frank H. Putnam, republican. Both candidates have a large following here and the outcome of their exceptionally well conducted campaigns will be awaited with marked interest.

In the 14th representative district, Owen E. Brennan, a present incumbent, and Charles H. Slowey, who left the state house to serve in the world war, are the democratic opponents of Harry W. Leavitt and Robert J. Thomas, republicans. Mr. Leavitt is an experienced campaigner and Mr. Thomas, former superintendent of the water department, enjoys a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Mr. Brennan and Frank McMahon were successful in this district last year. Mr. Slowey is counted upon as a fit running mate for Mr. Brennan owing to his excellent record at the state house as well as overseas.

The 15th representative district contest has peculiar interest this year because of the fact that the two democratic candidates, William J. Madden and John F. Thomas, succeeded in winning a place on the ballot by means of the "sticker" method of voting at the primaries. They are opposed by Henry Ashin, Jr., Victor F. Jewett and Adelpard Berard, republican nominees. Messrs. Ashin and Jewett are oftentimes in the legislature and Mr. Berard is said to have made a very effective canvass among the voters of the district. On the other hand, Messrs. Madden and Thomas have a large number of friends upon whom they are counting for support.

Mr. Conry's Candidacy

Former Congressman Joseph A. Conry, candidate for attorney general against J. Weston Allen, is one of the ablest men seeking public office today in Massachusetts. Of distinguished personal appearance, a big man in every respect, he is an eloquent speaker who deals in a masterly manner with principles rather than men. He is eminently fitted for the office he seeks and should receive the loyal support of every democrat. His speech at last night's rally was strong, eloquent and dignified, as are all his public utterances. Mr. Conry never descends to personalities and he manages always to stand upon solid ground in whatever he says. He is a candidate who should receive the support not only of democrats but also of republicans who wish to elect a man of the highest qualifications to the important office of attorney general.

Although it has not been generally advertised, the fact remains that when Lowell voters go to the polls next Tuesday they will cast their votes for the last time under the election system which calls for a choice of state officers every year. Beginning next year the biennial election law will be in effect and state officers will be chosen only once in every two years. That is, whatever candidates are elected in November, 1920, will serve for two years, 1921 and 1922.

This is expected to make the contests next year productive of a larger field than ever in view of the longer tenure of service—and salary—which will await the chosen ones. The biennial

The polls will open at 6 o'clock in the morning and close at 4 in the afternoon. Returns on local contests should be available early in the evening and the state-wide contests will

although a number of the local candidates plan to tour the city in behalf of their cause. On Monday evening, however, there will undoubtedly be an abundance of rallies all over the city when final appeals to the voters will be made.

Lowell has been well taken care of in the campaign by both parties and few cities in the state have had opportunity to hear a greater number of prominent speakers. During the week just closing there have been rallies practically every noon and every night, and a large attendance at all of them foreshadows a heavy vote next Tuesday.

The polls will open at 6 o'clock in the morning and close at 4 in the afternoon. Returns on local contests should be available early in the evening and the state-wide contests will

These are hard days for the Russian nobility. This prince chap, grandson of the king of Montenegro and nephew of the queen of Italy, ran a hundred risks of violent death while serving as private secretary to Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevik leader, in order to secure information for the allies. He is now in America, having escaped Russia in the disguise of a sailor on the American ship West Halifax. "No more Europe for me!" says Prince Vorotitch in Russian, and repeats it in six other languages of which he is master. The prince is 10 years old.
